MAYOR HAS ORDERED
AN INVESTIGATION

Director McKelvey, Who Wished to Remove Chief Panzer, Asks to Be Excused, and Inquiry Will Be Made by Board of Public Service.

An investigation of the St. Louis Fire Department was ordered today by Mayor Kiel, following receipt of a report made to the National Board of Fire Underwriters in which the efficiency and morale of the department were severely criticized.

The report was written by Charles
A. Whitney, an engineer for the national board, upon observation between Oct. 26 and Nov. 11. The chief criticisms of the report are:

Discipline is lax; there is no training school and the men are consequently ignorant of much of the equipment; test runs disclosed the department to be slower in performance than departments in other cities; motor apparatus frequently stalls; the repair department is overcrowded with work; company drills are perfunctory; there is lack of cooperation among several heads of departments; the department is undermanned; building inspection as conducted is of little value; there is insufficient response to still alarms and excessive number of companies at box alarms; and additional heavy stream apparatus are needed; drivers are inexperienced in "spotting apparatus" at hydrants.

Training Is Recommended.

It is recommended that officers should be appointed for indefinite terms, the length of service to depend on efficiency, and that an officers' school, as well as a training school for men, be established. Full motorization is recommended together with additional hose in the larger sizes. Compulsory retirement at the age of 62 years is suggested.

In compliance with the Mayor's instruction, the Board of Public Service today designated President
Kinsey and Directors House, Fink and Cunliff as a committee of investigation. The first meeting of the committee will be held next week.
Normally, such an investigation would be conducted by the Director of Public Safety McKelvey, but he stated to the board that inasmuch as he had made what he considered a necessary change for the welfare of the service several months ago, he preferred to be excused from participation. He was referring to his action of last May when he declined to reappoint Chief Panzer. Subsequently the Mayor ordered the reappointment of Panzer, who now is serving. The present report notes the lack of sympathy among the director, the chief and master mechanics as one of the contributing features of the department's condition.

Chief Panzer said today that, although he had not seen the report, he considered the St. Louis department as good or better than any department in the country. In the matter of speed on calls, he said, he would match the department against any.

Trial Tests Conducted.

Whitney conducted trial tests for efficiency and reports the result.
Companies were run out and required to couple to hydrants and hook and ladder companies were compelled to run up their highest ladders. The best time recorded by a company of five men was 50 seconds. The slowest was two minutes and 15 seconds and the average was one minute, 22 seconds.
Whitney remarks that a well-trained, modern pumper company

HENRY FORD'S NAME LINKED WITH SENSATION IN STEEL STOCK

He Is Said to Be Planning Purchase of Gulf States Steel Company; Shares Up 35 Points in Four Days.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Gulf States Steel, a comparatively obscure stock which has furnished Wall Street and the stock market with a new sensation in the last few days continued its meteoric career yesterday, making an extreme advance of almost 20 points to 85. It closed three points lower than what proved like selling for profits. At its maximum Gulf States showed a gain of about 35 points from last week's final price.

After the close of the market it was gossiped about, on the Stock Exchange, that the short interests in Gulf States were negotiating with holders of the stock for a private settlement on terms considerably above yesterday's highest quotations.

Many rumors have been afloat in connection with the stock's movement. The most popular report is to the effect that manufacturing interests affiliated with Henry Ford seek to acquire the property in connection with the proposed development of Muscle Shoals.

Another rumor credits the buying to interests which are said to have ambitious plans for the development of ore bodies in Alabama and Tennessee, where the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. is the largest subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.
Gulf States Steel was incorporated in Delaware in November, 1912, as successor of the Southern Iron & Steel Co. It owns blast furnaces and other mills in various parts of Alabama and controls coal properties aggregating 15,000 acres.

CLOSED BANK REOPENS, BUT IS QUICKLY CLOSED AGAIN

By the Associated Press.

STERLING, Ill., Jan. 20.—The Lydon State Bank, whose cashier, Arthur Buzzell fled two weeks ago, reopened yesterday, but was quickly closed again when Frank E. Fitch, a depositor, took in his pass book.

The book showed deposits of approximately $15,000 to Fitch's credit, but the record of the bank showed his account overdrawn, and it was charged Buzzell used this money also.

Far Eastern Committee Expected to Formally Adopt Proposal to Publish All Treaties.

SUGGESTION WAS MADE BY HUGHES

Naval Experts Meet Again,
With Only Fortifications Clause of Treaty Still Unfinished.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Formal adoption by the arms conference Far Eastern Committee of the American proposal for the publication of all treaties and understandings relating to China's interests was forecast today by the general approval given the suggestion at its preceding session.

The terms of the resolution prepared for the action of the committee today, embodying the general decision on the proposal reached yesterday, was one understood to provide that each Government make known not only the agreements to which such Government itself was party, but also all separate agreements and understandings entered into by its nationals and of which it has knowledge.

Japanese Approval for Plan.
Replying to the suggestion of the Japanese, presented for their general approval of the proposal yesterday, that it might be very difficult for any nation to provide a complete list of the various engagements of private individuals and corporations, Secretary Hughes, who offered the proposal, stated that no Government could be expected to fulfill obligations which it had no knowledge. He added, however, that such engagements might easily be of great importance and suggested that those of which the Government did have knowledge be made known.

In presenting his proposal, Secretary Hughes expressed the view that a full knowledge by the powers represented of all existing commitments in China would be of great aid in any international discussion of Chinese problems. He added also, that the present conference offered opportunity for any discussion which such a presentation might suggest.
As to this, however, it appears doubtful today that such a listing of commitments could well be accomplished before adjournment of the Washington conference.

With the naval limitation treaty put through a final revision and now completed except for the Pacific fortification section, the naval experts of the Powers met again today to try to work out a new phrasing of this article. There are hopes of an early solution of the question, despite the fact that the Japanese instructions from Tokyo on the subject are not yet conclusive, and in some quarters it is believed the conclusion of the treaty might be announced at a plenary session early next week.

MAIN POINTS
IN THE 5-POWER
NAVAL TREATY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The preamble to the naval or five-Power treaty, which is now understood to be complete with the exception of Article 19, relating to fortifications, is as follows:

"The United States of America, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, desiring to contribute to the maintenance of the general peace and reduce the competition in armament, have resolved, with a view to accomplishing those purposes, to conclude a treaty to limit their respective naval armaments, and to pledge themselves to their plenipotentiaries (here follows the names of the plenipotentiaries of the Powers in Washington)."

Vessels to Be Retained.
One of the most important articles of the treaty is that naming capital ships of the Powers which are to be

MEININGER HAD
'BOGUS' DRAFTS TO COVER UP SHORTAGE

Five Valueless Checks for $580,000, Found in His Safe Deposit Box, Held for Grand Jury.

INVESTIGATION WILL TURN TO OUTSIDERS

Grand Jury Next Will Take Up What Became of $754,000 Taken From Night and Day by Cashier.

By the Associated Press.

Five "bogus" drafts on banks in other cities; for a total of $580,000, are among articles taken from the personal safe deposit box of Arthur
O. Meininger, cashier of the looted Night and Day Bank, and held for the grand jury and the State Banking Department. They are without value except as evidence, and they are believed to indicate the plan which Meininger had made for covering up the greater part of "cash items" of $754,000, taken from the bank's funds, if he had known beforehand that the State Bank Examiners were to visit the bank on Wednesday, Jan. 4.

The drafts were made out, two in the sum of $150,000 each, two $100,000 each, and one $30,000, on banks in New York, Chicago and other cities. The dates were not filled in. When dated and placed among the bank's papers, they would absorb the greater part of the suspicious looking "cash items," and by the time they came back from the banks on which they were drawn, the examiners would have gone.

Surprised by Examiners' Visit.
Use of these drafts was prevented,
it is believed, by Meininger's failure to guess that the examiners were coming Jan. 4. By the time he learned of their presence, they had sealed the bank's cash and taken charge of the papers and articles and the drafts could not be slipped in. This surprise was followed by Meininger's departure, the same morning, on the tour which ended with his return to St. Louis last Monday night.

One of Meininger's attorneys, William R. Gilbert, recently demanded from J. G. Hughes, State Commissioner of Finance, the "personal effects" taken by Hughes and the Circuit Attorney from Meininger's safe deposit box. It was to resist any possible proceedings for the recovery of these drafts, and other articles of evidence, that Hughes engaged the legal services of Thomas E.
Francis. The connection of Francis with the case, as Hughes' special counsel, was first announced yesterday.

The Circuit Attorney's office is preparing to ask the Circuit Court to issue a writ of habeas corpus for the return of the bank, and of the contents of Meininger's box, for the grand jury's use. A subpoena duces tecum, for the presentation of the writ to the grand jury, will be another formality.

The part taken by persons not officially connected with the bank, in the withdrawal and misuse of its funds, will be the subject of inquiry by the grand jury next week. The grand jury will next meet at 2 p. m.
Tuesday. It is understood that indictments may be voted against certain persons outside the bank or organization, on the charge of conspiracy to dissipate the bank's funds.

Apartment Deals Examined.
Another phase of the inquiry which may be entered next week is into the financing of the Raleigh Apartments, De Baliviere and McPherson avenues, by the McMeo Investment Co., the name of which was made up of syllables from the names of Meininger, President Hohenschild of the bank, and John W. McCarthy, a builder, and former director of the bank. The Circuit Attorney has been informed that the building cost $410,000, of which the first and second deeds of trust cover only $310,- 000, and he wishes to learn whether the other $100,000 came from the bank's funds or was a private invest-

The grand jury yesterday afternoon voted 17 indictments against Meininger, cashier of the looted Night and Day Bank, and five other directors of the bank.

MRS. DODGE HAS GIVEN

M'KELVEY TO ENFORCE CITY SMOKE ORDINANCE

Wore Them Only to Weddings of Two Children; Once Forgot to Take Them Off.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 20.—The pearl necklace formerly owned by Catherine II, Empress of Russia, and purchased nearly two years ago by the late Horace E. Dodge, Detroit automobile manufacturer, was given three months ago by Mrs.
Dodge to her daughter, Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell of Philadelphia.
This announcement was made today by Howard B. Bloomer, executor of the Dodge estate.

It followed clearing up yesterday of the mystery surrounding ownership of the jewels, reputed to be worth approximately $1,500,000, and purchased by Dodge in New York for $825,000.

Mrs. Dodge wore the necklace but twice, first at the wedding here of her daughter and Mr. Cromwell, and the second time at the wedding of her son, Horace E. Dodge Jr., to Miss Lois Knowlton. It became known today that Mrs. Dodge accompanied her son's wedding party to a railroad station with the jewels about her neck, having forgotten to take them off.

The gems were sent to Philadelphia by express three months ago.

BELLBOY BUYS FARM WITH

he has saved in the last 11 years a farm lying in a fertile valley south of Joplin, paying $8000 for it. He intends to grow fruit and berries and

Cox. "Why, no, it was a comparatively easy matter. Of course, you have to get the saving habit. Once that is done, your pile will grow."

Measure, Suspended During War, to Be Made Active at Once, He Says.

A statement that he would proceed at once to enforce the smoke ordinance, suspended during the war and not since made active, was issued today by Director of Public Safety Mc-Kelvey.

He stated also that he has asked E. L. Ohle, professor of mechanical engineering in Washington University, to be chairman of a committee of three provided in the ordinance to recommend enforcement measures and rules that he would appoint another committee of five to meet once a month to consider smoke problems.

McKelvey, in his statement, says he is determined to eliminate the "smoke nuisance" if possible. "During and after the war," the statement says, "it was impossible to procure smokeless coal or proper grades of oil, and the Director of Public Safety concluded that it would be unfair to enforce the law, and he fully cognizant of what enforcement means to many interests, nevertheless he is obliged to enforce the law and to this end asks the co-operation of all manufacturing interests, utilities, engineers, firemen and all users of soft coal. Dense smoke is injurious not only to health but to many other things, and is a great nuisance."

The smoke ordinance forbids the issuance of dense smoke for more than a one-minute period, except when cleaning operations are in progress when the limit may be extended to 30 minutes.

CROWD BEFORE VATICAN;

Last Sacrament Insisted Upon by Pope as "a

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 20.—At 5.10 this afternoon the condition of Pope Benedict was stationary, it was stated at the Vatican. Camphor injections were being frequently resorted to. His Holiness was able to recognize those around him. He was still showing resistance against the progress of his malady.

Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, says the Tribuna has sent an urgent summons for all the Cardinals resident abroad to come to Rome in order that the sacred college may be present there, ready for an emergency.

Dr. Battistini, in confirming the gravity of the Pope's condition and declaring that only hope was in supernatural intervention, said His Holiness was threatened with suffocation owing to the excessively high respiration. The pneumonia, at 6:45 p. m., had not spread further.
It was announced. The pontiff's temperature was given at 101; pulse, 104; respiration, 40.

Sudden change for worse.
The Pope's life was considered to be hanging in the balance. Fear had been expressed at the Vatican at noon that His Holiness was then in a dying condition.

During the early hours of this morning, toward 4 a. m., there was a sudden change for the worse and the bronchial affection from which His Holiness had been suffering for several days spread to his lungs.

The Pontiff asked for and received the last sacrament, insinuating this "if only to give a good example," he said, despite attempts by his attendants to dissuade him.

Cardinal Giorgi, the apostolic penitentiary, was summoned to Pope Benedict's bedside at 8 o'clock, to recite the prayers for the dying.

SOLDIER, STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE, DIES

Wife of Army Sergeant and Her Son Were Killed in Accident Last August.

Clem Craig, 33 years old, a Sergeant in the Quartermaster Corps, died today at the Jefferson Barracks Hospital, from a fractured skull suffered when struck by an automobile as he was crossing the street in the $500 block on South Broadway at 2 p. m. yesterday.

Craig's wife, Mrs. Mary Craig of Granite City, and her son, William Bousman, 12, were killed Aug. 31 last, when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a train in Granite City.

Craig was the driver of a truck used to take children who reside at the Barracks to and from school. He had parked the truck on the east side of Broadway and was crossing the street to go to a bakery when struck. The driver of the automobile which struck him, said to have been a Lieutenant from Scott Field, took him to the Barracks hospital. He did not regain consciousness.

An officers' council was held at the Barracks today to investigate the accident.

Five Hurt in Auto Accidents; Two Cars Collide in Lindell.

He was taken to the city hospital. Witnesses told the police the boy ran into the machine.

Herman Heinrichs of 2327A South Jefferson avenue, was cut and bruised when an automobile driven by Joseph Himmelsbach of 4655 Louisiana avenue collided with a Grand avenue car backing into a switch at Walsh street and Virginia avenue. Three others in the machine were not hurt.

Mrs. Martha Turner 31, of 4724 Delmar boulevard, suffered a fractured arm and hand and O. SCIENCE SOLVES AN INTERESTING PROBLEM FOR ALL MOTHERS

Your Children Will Be Happy and Contented
If You Keep Them in Good Condition
With Analax—The Fruity Laxative

Every mother knows that a well child is a happy child. No child can enjoy health if the stomach is upset, and if the system is poisoned by the effects of constipation.

The poisons absorbed from the intestines in these conditions are the cause of more trouble and disease than almost every other cause combined.

In fact fully 80% of all the diseases that develop in children are either directly or indirectly the result of constipation. Headache, loss of appetite, disturbed sleep, fretfulness, irritability and a lowered resistance to colds and all forms of infection, are common results of constipation. Your children may become puny, anemic and run-down generally just from neglect to make sure that they have daily movements of the bowels.

Science now shows you a way to help overcome this trouble in the shortest time and pleasantest manner by just a pastille of Analax—the Fruity Laxative—once in a while at bedtime.

Doctors call Analax the "children's medicine" because it is so gentle and pleasant in its action. It is scientifically combined with pure fruit juices and sugar, and has the taste of fresh ripe raspberries. In fact your children and every member of your family will actually enjoy taking Analax.

Get a box today from your druggist. In 15 and 30 cent sizes. The large size is most economical. Manufactured by McKesson & Robbins, Inc., 91 Fulton Street, New York City, who are also makers of Calox, The Oxygen Tooth Powder and the famous Hundred Health Helps.

MRS. CAROLINE BERGS
SUES FOR DIVORCE

Alleges Husband Deserted Her Year Ago and Asks for Alimony of $50,000.

Mrs. Caroline Bergs, residing at the Washington Hotel, filed suit yesterday to divorce James Bell Bergs, alleging that he deserted her Jan. 18, 1921. She asks for restoration of her maiden name, Caroline Bremer Melton.

Bergs is a grandson of the late James W. Bell, a director of the Mercantile Trust Co., and was a beneficiary under the will of his grandfather. He is a graduate of Yale and served two years in the navy as a Lieutenant during the war. He and the plaintiff were married at her home in Hamilton Square, N. J., on July 17, 1920, they having met when she visited in St. Louis a year before.

Mrs. Bergs, who formerly resided in Philadelphia, is a sister of Mrs. Breckinridge Jones Jr., 534 1/2 Cates avenue, daughter-in-law of the president of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. In her petition Mrs. Bergs asks for alimony, stating that she has a just claim for $50,000. She obtained an attachment against his property as security. Her lawyer said that he understood Bergs had gone to Memphis, Tenn.

The Rev. J. O. Humphrey has been conducting the revival, and after the church is erected will hold regular services. The town was laid out about 30 years ago. The place was settled 75 years ago.

Items of Interest

The First Spring Call of Spring

Spring is not far off. You can't see her fluttering green and pink draperies or feel her soft breath on your cheek—but her voice is sounding in every feminine ear!

New Among Fabrics

—is the rich, deep-nap Velveteen, for sports suits and dresses. It comes in the softest and gayest of shades, with the smart, noticeable charm of a silk ribbon. There are some delightful little dresses and skirts made of it in the Apparel Shops, and a cape suit in jade and tan in the Women's Shop.

Third Floor.

Among the New Bags

—are some which prove conclusively that Spring is on the way. They are the flat, oddly shaped, imported bags of Ecrusse leather in colors to harmonize with the new tweed suits and topcoats.

$6.50 to $8.00 Bag Shop—First Floor.

The Cape Motif

—it is found interwoven in the theme for both suits, frocks and wraps. You'll have a hard time avoiding it when you begin to select your Spring wardrobe. But then, who wants to escape such novel, jaunty and youthful additions to the season's model?

Misses' Shop—Third Floor.

Worsted Embroidery

—arrived with the first fashion hint and remains to grace the new peasant blouses and the boyish tweed suits. Most unique designs are found on the blouse of crepe de chene, often trimmed with bands of contrasting color as well, and cut on long lines suggestive of the peasant smock of Central Europe.

Blouse Shop—Third Floor.

Women's Silk-and-Wool Hose

For Style and Comfort

On these cold wintry days it is a great comfort to have your feet warm and clad in these smart Hose of silk and wool, you know that you are wearing the very smartest as well. There is a choice of mode, corduroy, gray and combinations of black and gray or brown and silver; a pair $3.50

30-BILLION IN BONDS ESTIMATED AS TAX FREE

Witness Before House Committee Says $300,000,000 Would Accrue if Exemption Were Abolished.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—An estimate that there is outstanding a total of $30,000,000,000 of bonds entirely or partially tax exempt, from which the Government receives no revenue, was made by Dr. Edwin R.
A. Seligman, professor of political economy at Columbia University, yesterday before the House Ways and Means Committee, which is considering proposals for a constitutional amendment prohibiting further issue of tax-exempt securities.
Dr. Seligman asserted the Government, even during the war, should never have issued tax-exempt bonds.
The reputation of former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, he added,
"is tarnished" because he decided entirely or partially to exempt Liberty Bond issues from taxation.
"The sooner the Government refunds its tax-exempt bonds into taxable securities the better it will be for everyone," declared Seligman, adding that if tax exemption of Federal bonds were abolished the Government would receive additional annual revenue of approximately $399,- 800,000.
Dr. Seligman estimated the amount of outstanding State, county and municipal tax-free bonds at approximately $10,000,000,000. In addition the Government, he said, receives no revenue from $20,000,000,000 worth of Federal bonds. He asserted that the tax-exempt securities comprised about one-tenth of the country's wealth.

FARMER MUST BE HELPED, BRYAN TELLS KENTUCKY ASSEMBLY

This Congress No Worse Than Last, but Is Worse Scared, Speaker or Declares.

By the Associated Press.
FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 20.—
There can be no return to prosperity until the farmer's conditions are improved, William Jennings Bryan said here yesterday, in addressing a joint session of the General Assembly.

"You cannot expect prosperity as long as the farmer must sell his products at pre-war prices," he declared.
"In all my experience I never have known the farmer to be in so bad a shape," continued Bryan, adding that the farmer was "the first person picked on."
The present Congress, said the speaker, is no better or worse than the preceding Congress, but he declared it is worse scared because of the pressure brought by farmers.
Representation of farmers, laborers and a nonpartisan business man on the Federal Reserve Board was urged.

NEWSPAPER INNUEENDOS CALLED GREATEST MENACE TO DRY LAW

Resolution of Baptist Church Members of Clinton, Mo., Annals Editorial "That Encourage Bootlegging."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CLINTON, Mo., Jan. 20.—New-paper editorials, cartoons and "innuendoes" which "tend to encourage the illicit traffic in liquor" constitute the greatest menace to the Volstead law, in the opinion of members of the Baptist Church here. The declaration was made in a resolution passed unanimously at a meeting of the congregation Jan.

The congregation made a plea through Senator Spencer and Congressman W. O. Atkinson of Missouri to urge all Missourians in Congress to oppose any attempts to weaken
the prohibition laws.

The resolution deplored the instigation on the site of the prohibition enforcement forces.

26 DEATHS PLANNED IN GERMAN FORTUNE PLOT

Countess Coolly Tells Court Son Hired Grocer to Lure Wealthy Brother-in-Law to Death.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)
Herkules Haus 13 Frederick Wilhelmstrasse, BERLIN, Jan. 20.—A plot to get rid of 26 members of the household of the old Mecklenburg family of Schleffen in order to kill the heirs and divert the family fortune, revealed in the trial of Countess Eleanor Schleffen and her two sons, Hans Heinrich and Siegfried, in the Gosselitz courts, has caused a sensation.

While they failed to have a hired assassin kill the wealthy Count William von Schleffen, they succeeded in bringing infamy on the family, which dates back to the fourteenth century.

The Countess, a woman of 49, coolly admitted that she knew her son had hired a grocer, on the promise of 500,000 marks, to go to Mecklenburg, lure the old millionaire land owner into a forest and kill him or blow up the historic castle with dynamite.

The court, incredulous, asked the woman if she had known of the plot beforehand.

"Of course, I did. We discussed it at dinner," she replied. She explained her failure to make an earlier confession by saying that she kept silent to preserve the honor of the family.

Count William's father, Count Ernst Martin von Schleffen, who was also to have been murdered if the plans worked out, told the court that the accused Countess, who is his sister-in-law, meant to destroy a whole branch of the family.

"For years I have been watching my sister-in-law, suspecting that she was working for our destruction," he testified. "Once she said to me, 'My son, not yours, will inherit the family fortune.' My brother Heinrich, now dead, also warned me once to be careful of my son's life."

The circumstances of the attempted murder were made plain by the evidence. The Countess's son, Hans Heinrich, hired a grocer named Rosell to commit it, but Rosell lost his nerve and Von Schleffen then hired Rosell's nephew, a locksmith, who went to the old Count and told him of the plot.

The conservative newspapers here ignore the case as being offensive to its readers.

FORMER ANNA GOULD BEGINS DIVORCE ACTION

She Sends Duke de Sagan Home on $12,000 Allowance, but His Friends Say It Is Not Enough.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Wearing a dark cloak and a large, wide-brimmed, fur-trimmed hat, the former Miss Anna Gould, now Duchess de Talleyrand, Princess de Sagan, arrived at the Palais de Justice yesterday afternoon, for the preliminary proceedings of her suit for divorce. The Duke did not put in an appearance and was not represented. The Duchess was heard by President Servin of the civil tribunal of the Seine. Department, who is head of the divorce division.

In accordance with French law, the Judge is first supposed to hear both parties, with a view of reconciliation. The absence of one of the parties, after being duly apprised of the proceedings, is taken as ruling out any probability of reconciliation and the party which attends is authorized by the Judge to proceed with a definite divorce action. The Duchess de Talleyrand by President Servin. The affair will now go before one of the chambers which hears cases in private—probably before the First Chamber, which is presided over by the President himself and deals with the most important affairs. It may be a matter of a month or two before the hearing in the chamber.

As a result of certain information, it is understood, the Duchess had the Duke's going and coming watched by private detectives. On his return home in the early hours of one morning a few weeks ago he found detectives awaiting him. They informed him that they possessed proof of his relations with certain persons; that the Duchess was aware of this and had laid down conditions, the observance of which were the only alternative to her beginning suit for divorce.

These conditions included his retirement to the German principality of Sagan on an allowance of about $12,000 a year, it is stated. Friends of the Duke suggest that his return to Paris after consenting to stay at Sagan was due to his considering the allowance insufficient. When he returned here he concealed himself even his near relatives being unaware of his whereabouts.

MRS. BLANCHE VAN CLEAVE SUE FOR SEPARATE MAINTENANCE

Says $200 Monthly, Contributed by Her Husband, Is Not Sufficient for Needs.

Mrs. Blanche B. Van Cleave, 2555 Clifton avenue yesterday filed suit for separate maintenance against Arville A. Van Cleave, president of the Grandview Fire Co., alleging that he deserted her Jan. 4, 1920, and has since contributed $200 a month for the support of herself and their three children. She says the amount is insufficient, considering their status in life and his financial condition and she asks for a reasonable allowance.

She states that he has proper worth $250,000 and a yearly income of $15,000. Mrs. Van Cleave claimed a temporary restraining order prohibiting her husband from withdrawing securities from a safe deposit box at the Liberty City Trust Co. pending settlement of maintenance claim. The Van Cleave were married April 30, 1901.

WIDOW'S $5000 SUIT AGAINST REALTY COMPANY ON TRIAL

Firm Sued Her for Increased Rent Two Years Before Lease Expired.

The suit of Mrs. Frieda Tuffli of 3800 Lafayette avenue, a widow, for $5000 damages against the Tower Grove Realty Co. and its officers, Charles H. Thimmig and Elroy V. Selbeck, is on trial in Circuit Judge Hartmann's court. She was a tenant at the Tower Grove Apartments, 4048 Cleveland avenue, and charges that the defendants harassed and annoyed her by filing unlawful detainer proceedings and suits for rent against her.

Five such suits were filed, four of which were not prosecuted, and the fifth was won by Mrs. Tuffli after a trial. She says she was put to expense of hiring lawyers and that the annoyance of the litigation, which she charges, was without probable cause, caused her to become nervous.

Mrs. Tuffli testified she had occupied the apartment since 1915. The building was sold early in 1919 to the Tower Grove Co. and Mrs. Tuffli received notice either to sign a new lease at an increased rental or move out, she stated. She refused, contending that the lease she obtained from the former owner had until April 30, 1921, to run. This lease specified the rental at $56 a month. Her refusal to vacate resulted in the filing of the suits against her. However, she remained until expiration of the old lease. The defendants, in a notice served upon Mrs. Tuffli, disclaimed responsibility for leases executed by the former owner. The notice set forth:

It was necessary to make new leases providing for more rent because the investment was not a dividend yield. Selbeck, as his own lawyer, stated that he took the advice of a lawyer in filing the suits against Mrs. Tuffli and that they were not filed for the purpose of annoying her. The other defendants, through separate lawyers, deny liability for filing of the suits.

Every man, woman and child addicted to pills and cathartics for constipation should know that Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, will give permanent relief naturally if they will eat it regularly. Pills and cathartics can never do more than give temporary relief, and at the same time they aggravate the delicate intestinal pathway and pave the way for graver disorders.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is simply nature's food, and made delicious and appetizing by the Kellogg process. Eat it as a very appetizing cereal or sprinkle it on your favorite cereal or on other food. Your physician will endorse the consistent use of bran for constipation. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will give permanent relief to every sufferer from constipation if at least two table-spoonfuls are eaten each day. For chronic cases, eat as much as necessary.

Kellogg's Bran sweeps and cleanses without discomfort. Its natural mechanical action is wonderful. Ninety per cent of all human ailments would be eliminated and there would be a new and better race of people if bran was universally eaten daily.

Kellogg's Bran can be used in many delightful foods such as bran bread, pancakes (the best you ever ate), macaroons, etc. See recipes on each package. (Buy it at your grocer's.) P. S.—Kellogg's Bran will clear up a pimply complexion and free the breath from obnoxious intestinal odors!

Twenty-Five Members of the House Guests at Dinner Given by James E. Smith.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Twenty-five members of the House of Representatives were the guests at a dinner given last night in the Speaker's dining room at the Capitol restaurant by James E. Smith of St. Louis, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Association, in charge of waterway matters.

Without dissent, the bloc decided to oppose on the floor of the House, necessary, any cut in the $27,000 recommended for rivers and harbors during the next fiscal year.

The bloc is now under consideration by the House Appropriations Committee. Whether an effort will be made in the House to increase the amount above $27,000, if it is the sum reported by the Appropriations Committee, was left to the determination of the members present at the meeting.

The members present at the meeting agreed to canvass others from their respective states in the interest of waterway legislation. Several speeches were made in opposition to the practice of cutting rates to water points at the expense of the valley states.

The need of legislation to prevent discrimination against the interests of the country was stressed. Missouri was represented at the meeting by Congressman Newton and Roach. Congressman Newton presided as chairman of Illinois presided as chairman. Other states represented were Virginia, Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota.

COUNTY REGISTRATION IS SNATCHED AWAY

Act of Last Legislature Changes Population Requirements, Almost Within Reach.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 20.—Registration of voters, almost within the grasp of St. Louis County under a law enacted in 1917, was snatched away by a new measure enacted by the regular session of the Legislature last winter, it has developed.

St. Louis county never has had registration, the only statute providing for registration outside cities having limited that privilege to counties with an estimated population of 150,000 or more, which reached only Jackson County in which Kansas City is. This population requirement was not on a census basis, but was determined by taking five times the total vote for the governorship, cast at the last previous general state election.

Until women were given the vote, St. Louis County did not approximate 150,000 even on that basis. At the last general election in November, 1920, however, with women voting, the county cast a vote for the governorship of about 39,000. Five times that figure gave the county far more than enough to qualify for registration.

Then the Legislature, in House Bill No. 16, introduced by Representative Prewitt of Jackson County, a Democrat, amended the registration law in question so as to require counties to have 150,000 inhabitants on a census basis, to qualify for registration.

This eliminated St. Louis County, the population of which is only slightly more than 100,000.

EMPLOYERS HAVE NEW PLAN TO REVIVE BUILDING

Details to Be Submitted to Representatives of Civic and Commercial Organizations Next Tuesday.

NEW WAGE SCALES ARE CONTEMPLATED

Action of Contractors Follows Defeat by Unions of Proposed 20 Per Cent Reduction in Pay.

The Building Employers' Association, consisting of contractors and subcontractors, sent out today by mail a call for a meeting of representatives of civic and commercial organizations, at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Century Building to discuss measures by which the wage deadlock between the master builders and the building trades unions can be broken to the advantage of all concerned.

At this meeting a plan now being formulated by the builders will be submitted as a basis for the discussions. At present this plan contemplates new wage scales, beginning Feb. 1, for the crafts now working at $1.25 an hour without contracts. The largest of these crafts is the carpenters, these workmen having a union with about 5000 members.

The action of the building employers follows announcement of the defeat in a referendum vote by the unions of the proposed 20 per cent wage reduction for skilled workmen. The proposal was officially certified to the building trades yesterday and the wage conference committee of the Building Trades Council has been dissolved.

R. L. Rinehart, president of the Master Builders' Association, and chairman of the Building Employers' Association, does not believe relief in lower building costs can be expected in further wage conferences with the unions, and sees no prospect of starting the great building projects that are being held back by high costs, unless the skilled crafts of the building trades accept a reduction of at least 20 per cent.

Rinehart said the builders were convinced that the progress of St. Louis demanded a scale of wages approximating that paid in competing cities, and that the meeting Tuesday was intended to crystallize this sentiment. He added that the building trades were not seeking to institute the open shop against the unions, but did intend to resist the basic wage scale of $1.25 an hour as being inequitable to the civic welfare. His call for the meeting Tuesday contained the following points:

1. That a further reduction in the cost of building is of far greater importance to the public than to the builder.
 2. That it is assumed the public is sufficiently serious in its desire for reduced building costs to make necessary preliminary sacrifices.
 3. That if it should become necessary to fight for lower wages the public must support those selected to carry on the fight.
 4. That this support will be effective only if given through civic and commercial organizations which have been formed to promote civic progress.
 5. That this support must be active and positive, not passive.
- Rinehart said the Building Employers' Association believed the next step should be the creation of a citizens' committee, comprising representatives of the civic and commercial organizations, to deal with the situation, adding that the building trades had agreed to this course of action.
- Director of Public Welfare Cunniff, who has represented the public in the recent wage conference, will be invited to Tuesday's meeting.

SPENDTHRIFT RUSSIANS MAKE SOFIA TOO LIVELY FOR MINISTER

By the Associated Press.
SOFIA, Jan. 20.—Sofia, long believed by European travelers to be the most moral, respectable and staid old town in the Balkans, is becoming too gay to suit Bulgaria's stern Prime Minister, Alexander Stamboulsky.

The peasant Premier has just given warning that the city folk are becoming demoralized by contact with the Western influences. Among the "refugees," he said, are wealthy business men, who are squandering their money and substance in riotous living and scandalous excesses. To put a stop to this, he ordered the deportation of these rich and dissolute aliens.

It is evident also to the American visitor that the capital has lately shaken off some of the drab aspects acquired during the war. The theaters, the opera, the restaurants and hotels are thronged nightly.

How Navy Treaty Will Designate Ships to Be Scrapped, With Dates

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The replacement charts of the five-power naval treaty, now complete, specify by name the ships that are to be scrapped, including those building and the date on which each is to go out of commission. Ships to be constructed in replacement are designated by letters of the alphabet, the dates when keels are to be laid and the dates when vessels are to be completed being designated for all of them.

As they stand on the treaty draft, the replacement charts of the United States, Great Britain and Japan appear below, with the age of each vessel in years appearing after its name and vessels now being built followed by a zero. The ships to be scrapped immediately are tabulated under the 1921 scrapping quota.

Post-Dispatch Shows
Needs of St. Louis in Special Art Supplement

THE Post-Dispatch has issued a Rotogravure Art Public Improvement supplement, containing a reproduction of new articles with illustrations and editorial comment on the survey of the needs of St. Louis to care for the safety, health and convenience of its citizens.

The needs, to be accomplished only through a municipal betterment plan, are given in detail, a separation being made of those for which there is an immediate demand and those which can be postponed for a time without serious loss to the city.

The edition of the supplement is limited, but copies may be had by those interested upon application at the front counter of the Post-Dispatch business office.

Revival of the Citizens' City Plan Committee, of 1900 or more members, to promote the upbuilding of St. Louis through active personal support of the Greater St. Louis plan of the City Plan Commission, including support of a bond issue to carry out much of the public work shown to be needed in bringing an exhaustive survey of St. Louis needs by the Post-Dispatch, will be undertaken immediately. This became known last night at the conclusion of a testimonial dinner given to E. J. Russell, chairman of the Commission, at Hotel Statler.

Responding to speeches of appreciation of his services in planning a future St. Louis as a city beautiful with adequate facilities for the safety, health and comfort of its citizens, Russell called upon St. Louis citizens to join in support of the Commission to the end that there might be brought about a city-wide realization of the problems which must be met for the future in St. Louis.

After the dinner, Russell said plans were under way for the calling of a meeting of members of the old Citizens' Committee, the activities of which resulted in bringing to St. Louis Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the Commission, and the creation of the Commission.

The dinner was given Russell by 200 of those who have been active in civic movements, in support of civic improvements and in backing up the Commission in its work.

A Rotogravure art supplement of the Post-Dispatch, containing reproductions of all the new articles and editorials published in the recent Post-Dispatch survey, in which the needs of St. Louis were pointed out in detail, with the compelling reasons why they should be accomplished through a bond issue, as quickly as physically possible, was distributed.

Fred W. Lehmann, the first of the speakers at the dinner to visualize the needs of the future St. Louis in more than general terms, urged a concerted action to care for the municipal requirements of the coming generations.

Two entirely different cities were built in St. Louis, Lehmann said. "One was the French city built along the river bank by Laclade 150 years ago. Laclade was a man of vision, but his vision was limited by the time in which he lived. He built with the vision of the man who knew nothing of the steamboat or the railroad, and who saw only the slow river traffic of his day. Consequently we have the narrow streets east of Fourth street, the old St. Louis, adequate in its time, but inadequate in a city grown great as St. Louis."

"We have one great natural thing, our river front. It is our great front yard, but through our neglect, it has become a back yard, from appearance suitable only as a store ground for the dumping of tin cans and garbage. There lies our great bridge, the gateway to our city, and it takes a telegraph to find it."

"West of Fourth street is the American city, and there is no danger that we are going to duplicate it to exactly the same purpose as that to which we have dedicated the French city east of Fourth street. It is falling into decay, and the area of decay is extending. We must stop it."

Canada's First Woman Parliament Member, Elected on Farmers' Ticket, Lists High Tariff as Dragon to Slay

Miss Agnes Macphail, County Girl Who Began Career as Rural Teacher, Is Devoted to Party and Promises War on Corporations' Watered Stock.

FIRST WOMAN TO WIN
SEAT IN CANADIAN HOUSE

MISS AGNES MACPHAIL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
TORONTO, Jan. 19.—Canada's first woman member of Parliament, Miss Agnes Macphail, is a progressive of the progressives. A member of the new Farmers' party, she represents in her outlook on life and her attitude on public questions the acute class consciousness which has played such a large role in the sudden development of a formidable political organization. When Agnes was 16 she had her first experience of urban life when she went to the town of Owen Sound to attend the high school.

"I was then a tall, gawky girl," she says, "plainly but respectably dressed. In class I found a farmer's daughter was the equal of any student, but at social gatherings I found, to my amazement, she had no status whatever. In a dumb, hurt way I mulled this over and over in my mind."

Devoted to Farmers' Cause.

Miss Macphail, now 31 years old, but the youngest member of the new Parliament, is still seeking the solution of the problem presented by that statement of fact. She is passionately devoted to the cause of the Farmers' party. When her leaders were offered seats in the new Liberal Cabinet and sought advice from their followers as to what they should do—even before they sought advice—the voice of Miss Macphail was stern and unequivocal: No truck or trade with either of the old city-controlled political parties. Let us be true to ourselves. Her point of view is that of an agricultural Sinn Fein.

Miss Macphail first entered the orbit of newspaper notice two years ago when Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, and other Royal Commissioners traversed the country seeking evidence on the tariff. At one of the sessions she appeared as a member of the local tariff advocates. Her arguments were not such as would have achieved any particular attention. She had early decided that farming does not pay, that being the basic industry it must be made to pay, that this can only be achieved by getting the farmer better prices for his products and lower prices for what he has to sell and lower prices through lower tariffs for what he has to buy. What did attract attention was the absolute fearlessness of the witness her homely but graphic phrase, and her caustic tone.

"You'll be marrying a farmer one of these days," gently suggested Sir Henry Drayton.

"Not I," came the response. "He couldn't afford to keep me."

"Got Evidence All Wrong."

Subsequently, when she became a candidate for Parliament, she said the reporters had got her evidence all wrong. "There may be nothing for me to do but marry a farmer," she said, adding diplomatically, "but I won't be till after the election."

She further confided: "No woman reaches 30 without proposals, if she has any pep and go."

The gawky high school girl by this time had become a teacher in a little one-room country school. For almost 15 years she had been "mulling" over the farmers' problem. She had early decided that it was largely a question of economics, so books on economics became her daily study, while other girls of her age were devoting themselves to parties and frocks and beads.

One night she threw aside a book with a groan: "I don't believe I'll ever understand that stuff."

"I don't believe you will," said an unimpeachable companion on the other side of the table, an old farmer with whose family the teacher was boarding.

That got teacher's blood up. She decided then and there she would own free will and stayed because I wanted to stay."

Behrman criticized the St. Louis man who does not know his city, its advantages and its beauties, commenting on the progress which had been made in the 20 years since he first came.

"When I show a stranger St. Louis," he said, "I do not show him the biggest show factory, the biggest drug store, the biggest brewery or the biggest anything. I start with him at the city hall and take him by the public library, and then out to the West St. Louis streets where the big churches are, and then to the group of churches out on Union boulevard, the Artists' Guild, then to Washington University and to the Art Museum."

Art Museum "Worth While."

"Our Art Museum may not equal the British Museum. It may not equal the Metropolitan Museum in New York, but I care nothing for comparisons of that kind. It is a good museum, and worth the while of any person anywhere."

"From the Art Museum I take the visitor to the Barnes Hospital, and then to Shaw's Garden, which is known all over the world, but is so the sitting member standing for reelection had a record of 10 years' service, was a manufacturer with wide popularity, and an able speaker. No one was particularly anxious for the job of dislodging him, and the lady got the nomination.

Ran Her Own Campaign.

Miss Macphail ran her own campaign. Her constituency was 50 miles long, contained nine townships, five villages and two towns. Her machinery depended on a telephone, a Ford car and a stenographer. She appointed a supervisor for each township, town and village, and a committee with a live chairman or chairwoman in every polling station. All these workers and other helpers could depend on she card indexed. She arranged a series of 47 meetings covering the whole riding. Each one she addressed personally, never speaking less than an hour, and in addition addressed eight meetings in other ridings. She introduced to her own meetings scarcely any outside speakers, depending on local speakers and on musical talent to provide entertainment other than she herself could provide. Every week she advertised briefly in the nine local newspapers, many of which reflected the spirit which quickly began to permeate the riding that South Grey could put itself on the map by electing the first woman to the Canadian Parliament.

One night her husband, who was a night driver, was out on duty and she was stranded in inky darkness. She walked five miles to her destination, arriving at 4 a. m. to find that search parties were out looking for her.

Victory a Sweeping One.

Her victory was a sweeping one. And her total expenses were $600, one-third, the other two-thirds being made up by members of the farmers' organization, members of which contributed $1 each.

The first woman member of Parliament, who, like Lincoln, was born in a log cabin, approaches her $4000 a-year position in no spirit of boastfulness. She still has her dragons to slay, but she is going to have a pastime. She says she is going to be a listener for the first session, anyway. And she is going to learn French. Modestly, she labels Parliament a "house of temptation," where other and better people than herself have succumbed. But her ambition is to serve her constituents and to arouse rural Canada to its rights and possibilities.

Knows Rural Life From Inside.

Rural life in Canada she knows from the inside. She can bake, churn, cook, sew, make a cow or hitch a horse with equal dexterity. She knows the problems of the rural wife, of the rural husband, of the rural child. To get to school she, as a little girl, trudged three miles daily over bad country roads. Only when the trail became impassable in midwinter did she despair, and on these stormy days she "played" school with her friends in the role of teacher. Schooldays, whether of play or reality, were a continual joy. But she has also vivid memories of days of drudgery—the very round of a farm woman's life—memories of the smell of suds, of the line of wet flannels, of interminable cooking and dishwashing and outdoor chores. They are memories and experiences that will introduce a new point of view to the majestic pile on Parliament Hill.

For her campaign Miss Macphail invested in a plain blue serge dress. She wore no other. "It had to come either to the House of Commons or to the House of Rogues," she now relates, adding that she has become so attached to it that she is having it made over so that it may share the honor of her debut in Parliament.

Little known in St. Louis.

Lehmann told that St. Louis was once known as the Mound City. "Where are the mounds now?" he asked. "Once there was a great one up on Broadway, but it has been leveled because nobody had a just appreciation of its historical beauty and value."

He expressed the opinion that nobody in his audience ever had visited the Cahokia Mounds, "a thirty-minute ride from St. Louis, and greater than the Pyramids of Egypt."

He complained because there was no life downtown in St. Louis after night, and that the tendency was to move ever further westward.

"It takes a fight to get anything for the east part of St. Louis," he said. "It took a devil of a fight to hold the Missouri Athletic Association on Fourth street. In Chicago, Kansas City and other cities it is different. They build their big clubs and their hotels downtown where the stranger sees them. Here you could shoot a machine gun up and down Broadway after 6 o'clock at night and you would not unduly endanger life."

Lehmann closed with a plea to St. Louis to look to the future and to

ST. LOUIS FIRMS WANT ALL-WATER ROUTE TO TEXAS

Shippers Interested in Reaching Gulf Ports to Consult With Shipping Board Officials.

PRESENT RATES SAID TO FAVOR THE EAST

Steamship Service Between New Orleans and Coastal Points Will Be Advocated.

A proposal by St. Louis shippers interested in reaching Texas gulf ports through an all-water route, that the United States Shipping Board establish a regular steamship service between New Orleans and the Texas ports to co-operate with the Mississippi River barge service, will be laid before officials of the Shipping Board at a conference in New Orleans at the Grunewald Hotel next Thursday.

This all-water service is desired to enable St. Louis manufacturers to ship their products into the Gulf Coast district of Texas at rates permitting competition with Eastern manufacturers, who now have a water steamship service from New York to the Gulf ports. At present, it costs the St. Louis manufacturers more to ship by rail to Texas points than it does their Eastern competitors to ship by the all-water route.

An example of the higher rate is the cost of steel barrels the rate from St. Louis by rail being $1.52 as compared with 56 cents from New York by water. A still further disadvantage to St. Louis is the fact that a number of cities inland from the Atlantic coast are permitted to ship by rail to Texas at the New York water rate plus only the rail rate from those cities to New York, this combined rate for all-rail shipment being in many cases much lower than the St. Louis rate, although St. Louis is much nearer the Texas cities.

Officials Who Will Attend.

The Shipping Board officials who will be in New Orleans for the conference, are W. J. Love, vice president in charge of traffic, and W. B. Keene, general traffic manager. Theodore Brand, Federal manager of the Mississippi-Warrior Barge Service, also will be present.

The Industrial Traffic Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, of which P. W. Coyne is manager, is interested in the proposal and has undertaken to collect data as to the probable tonnage that might be available for the through service, either outbound or inbound.

Among the representatives of large St. Louis manufacturers, who are going to New Orleans for the conference and who are ready to provide substantial tonnage, are G. E. Niedringhaus of the Niedringhaus Metalware Corporation and Sam Alexander of the Monsanto Chemical Works. They are interested in having as large a delegation as possible, so that the case may be strongly presented on behalf of the St. Louis shippers.

Niedringhaus said that he was confident enough tonnage was in sight to provide for weekly or semi-weekly sailings from New Orleans and that he believed it interested all shippers having tonnage to offer make the amount known to Traffic Commissioner Coyne and also attend the New Orleans conference. The only steamers now connecting New Orleans and the Texas ports are those destined for the Far East or the Pacific Coast, which take on cargo at New Orleans and complete their loads at the Texas ports. There is a possibility that a through route to the Texas ports might be established in connection with these, but the service is not regular.

The Texas ports open to ocean steamers are Port Arthur, Galveston, Houston and Texas City. Low intrastate rail rates established by the Texas Railway Commission, for the benefit of these ports, make it advantageous for many inland Texas cities to obtain manufactured products from the East by way of the Gulf ports.

Through Rate Is Desired.

The St. Louis shippers expect to ask that, in case the Shipping Board decides to establish service between New Orleans and the Texas ports, a through rate by way of the Mississippi River and the ocean line, proportionate to the all-water rate from New York, be established. This would give a rate considerably lower than the New York rate, as the distance is considerably less.

St. Louisians interested in the movement believe that Chicago shippers also will join in the conference and urge the establishment of the service. Chicago already is sending a large amount of merchandise to New Orleans by way of the Mississippi River barge line.

SETTLES HER CLAIM AGAINST UNCLE'S ESTATE FOR $5500

Mrs. Sophia Houston Accepts Sum and $4000 Bequest in Place of $98,000.

The claim of Mrs. Sophia Houston of Palmyra, Ill., for $98,000 against the estate of the late Attorney William Winkelmann of Belleville, was settled yesterday in the Probate Court at Belleville for $5500. Besides this, Mrs. Houston will receive $4000 as a bequest.

In filing her claim, Mrs. Houston, a niece of Winkelmann, whose estate is valued at between $250,000 and $300,000, declares that her uncle induced her parents to permit her to come to America from Germany to make her home with him and his wife on promise that she would be taken into the home as their own daughter and that he would provide for her so as to enable her to live her entire lifetime without care or worry. She came to America when 11 years old and her aunt died a few years later. She remained with her uncle until his remarriage.

When she desired to take up some sort of work to enable her to earn her own living, her uncle refused to permit it, she said, stating she would be taken care of for her lifetime. She was married after leaving her uncle. When her uncle's will was opened, he left her $4000. She then filed the claim for $98,000, contending that she would be entitled to at least $100,000 upon his promise, but wanted to deduct the bequest made by Winkelmann.

SLAVES IN CHAINED BANDS REPORTED IN ABYSSINIA

Men Are Said to March in Misery, With Women and selves Along.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Westminster Gazette concluded yesterday its exposure of alleged slavery conditions in Abyssinia and denunciation of the importation of American arms and ammunition, which are said to be used in slave raids.
Its correspondent suggests that the only way to end the evils is by the demonstration of European authority by the use of considerable force and says the London Foreign Office is not unacquainted with the situation. The Gazette follows this editorially by suggesting that Great Britain take action and ask the support of other nations, including America. It believes the matter might be referred to the League of Nations.

Program for Post-Dispatch Children's Concert Tomorrow

HERE is the program of the first Post-Dispatch free children's concert by the St.
Louis Symphony Orchestra, to be given at 10:30 tomorrow morning in the Missouri Theater, Grand and Lucas avenues. Fifty-five hundred tickets for this concert have been distributed.
No child will be admitted without a ticket. The concert will last about one hour, and the selections will be explained by Rudolph Ganz, conductor of the orchestra, in a short talk.

If you have a ticket, clip out this program and take it to the concert with you. The numbers are:

1. Polonaise "Militaire" A Major, Op. 40, No. 1.....Chopin

2. Second Movement "Larhetto" from Symphony No.
2 in D Major, Op. 36—
Beethoven
3. (a)—Dance of the Marionettes.....Giazounoff
(b)—Funeral March of a Marionette.....Gounod
4. "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn"— (cello solo, Mr. Steindl)—
Godard
5. "Shepherd's Hey"—Grainger
6. Waltz—"The Blue Danube"— Strauss

This program shows one change from that originally announced last week. As the fifth number, Percy Grainger's
"Shepherd's Hey" has been substituted for "Children's March," by the same composer, previously announced.

stresses the importance of preventing the forwarding of the supplies of American arms and ammunition which have been held up by the French at Jibuti, the sea terminus of the Abyssinian railway. While the Abyssinians possess millions of rifles, their ammunition is now reduced to a point as low as five rounds to the rifle.
European Powers have agreed not to supply Abyssinia and other African countries with ammunition or materials for their manufacture, but America has not signed, and it was to America that the Abyssinian Government lately turned for these supplies. Payment was made in advance three months ago, and cartridges and automatic rifles shipped from the United States are now lying at Jibuti.

The French authorities on the spot are not enthusiastic about the arms convention, and are inclined to suggest that it was only accepted because of British pressure, but they object to its infringement by the United States, since if munitions are to be sold they have plenty of their own they would like to sell.

(Abyssinia, which is the only free nation left in Africa, abuts on British Sudan and British East Africa, driving a wedge between them.)

SHERIFF, INDICTED AS BANK ROBBER, RESIGNS

J. W. Wilson of Bond County, Illinois, Taken to Jail
by Coroner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENVILLE, Ill., Jan. 20.—
John W. Wilson, Sheriff of Bond County, under indictment for burglary and larceny and assault to kill, in connection with the $36,000 Panama (Ill.) bank robbery Dec. 12, handed his resignation yesterday to the County Clerk and, on receiving notification from three of his bondsmen that they would withdraw from his bond, gave himself up to Coroner Hall and was taken to jail at Hillsboro. He said he would not try to give another bond, but would stay in jail and ask for an early trial.

Wilson is the official whose picture was printed in the Post-Dispatch last Friday, showing him wearing a cowboy hat and a conspicuous star, the badge of his authority, of which he has divested himself.

His resignation as Sheriff is to take effect Feb. 6, when it will be acted on by the Board of Supervisors.

Until that time he will continue to be Sheriff. The board will appoint a successor to serve until the expiration of the term in December.
Wilson said the bondmen on his official bond had not asked to be released, but he felt that under the circumstances he could not continue to serve satisfactorily.

The men on his criminal bond who notified him of withdrawal were E.
W. Merry, L. W. Tice and Joe

Schnitzbaum. The other four, George Alderman, Bert McLean, John L.
Warner and Thomas Duckworth, were willing to remain, but the withdrawal of the three invalidated the bond.

HOOVER GIVES WARNING OF IMPENDING COAL STRIKE

Secretary Says Stage Is Set for Bituminous Walkout About Last of March.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Warning of an impending general strike in the country's coal industry was given yesterday by Secretary Hoover, who declared that the public should know what to expect when the national agreements covering the wages and working conditions of miners expire April 1.

"The stage," he said, "appears to be set for a strike in the bituminous coal fields about the last of March."

Hoover did not indicate what the Government's plans for meeting such an emergency were, but said there had been no conferences between representatives of the administration and the miners and operators for about six weeks.

While he did not discuss what the Government's attitude might be in the event of a general coal strike, the impression was gained that the administration was regarding without undue alarm the possible approach of such a strike situation.

CHECK FOR $5000 PRESENTED

TO RABBI LEON HARRISON

Fortieth Anniversary of Ministry at Temple Israel Observed With Dinner at Columbian Club.

A $5000 check was presented to Rabbi Leon Harrison by the congregation of Temple Israel last night in commemoration of his thirtieth anniversary as minister of the congregation. The presentation was made at a congregational dinner at the Columbian Club. About 400 members of the congregation were present. Irma Louise Wolford, representing the children of the Sabbath School, presented 30 American Beauty roses to Dr. Harrison, and Mrs. Sigmund Washington, president of the Temple Israel Sisterhood, announced that a check for $30 had been sent to the Gertrude Boys' Home in honor of the occasion.

In the business session which preceded the dinner Aaron Waldheim, David Sommer, Aaron Fuller, Emil Meyer and Sidney Shoenberg were elected trustees of the temple. Jacob Roth was elected treasurer and Carl Staburg secretary. Julius Glaser, president of the congregation, reported that the temple had a membership of 580 heads of families, representing a regular attendance of approximately 1800 persons. The revenue for 1921 was $43,949.73. The debt on the temple is $46,000, of which $26,000 is available for payment. Rabbi Harrison received letters and telegrams from friends in many cities congratulating him on his 30 years of service. One was from Dr. Henry Berkowitz of Ventnor, N. J., formerly of Kansas City, dean of rabbis in America.

SELF DEFENSE IS WERNER'S PLEA IN MURDER TRIAL

Council, Outlining Case, Says Miller Was Shot in Fight After Attempting to Rob Defendant.

Self-defense, following an alleged robbery attempt, will be the plea of Paul Werner of 4357 Delor street, in his trial on a charge of first-degree murder in the shooting and killing of Norman Miller of 2012 Rutger street, Oct. 24 last, at Alex Risch's garden, Lemay Ferry and Weber roads, Luxemburg, it was indicated in the opening statement of counsel for the defense in the Clayton Circuit Court today. Testimony for Werner began in the afternoon. Court convened at 9:30 a. m. for the completion of the State's case. Assistant Chief of Detectives Walton and several other St. Louis detectives, who were testifying, were late, and court remained in session, but without transacting business until they arrived at 11:20 a. m. Judge McElhinney remained on the bench and the jury and about 100 spectators stayed in the courtroom. The witnesses arrived and the State decided not to use them. The prosecution rested its case then, after an ineffectual attempt to have an undertaker, who had examined Miller's body, testify.

Robbery Attempt Alleged. Counsel for Werner, outlining their case, declared that it would be shown that Miller and several other men had tried to rob Werner as he slept in an automobile; that when Werner discovered them a fight ensued and he shot Miller in self-defense. Joseph Hunt, porter at the roadhouse, testifying for the prosecution yesterday, said that he had retired, but got up about 10:25 p. m. and went downstairs to lock an outside cellar door. He was returning through the garden, he said, when he saw Werner sitting in an automobile and apparently just waking. He said Werner got out of the machine and asked how long he had been asleep and exclaimed: "I feel rotten." Miller and Herman Brinkmeyer of 877 Switzer avenue passed as this remark was made, Hunt said, and Miller said to Werner: "If you feel rotten you must have had something to drink."

Werner Had Carried Revolver. Hunt said Miller walked on and he heard somebody call an offensive name and saw Miller and Brinkmeyer turn back. He said he heard Miller say: "What was that?" and saw Brinkmeyer strike Werner, who then drew a revolver and called out: "Stand back!" While this was going on, he said, Clarence Dawe, driver of Miller's car, was standing behind Werner. Hunt said he saw Werner fire one shot in the ground and then turn and fire a shot at Dawe, who fled. Werner, he said, then fired a third shot at Miller, who fell, after which Werner got in his machine and drove away.

Werner Had Carried Revolver. Hunt testified that two weeks before he saw Werner at the Garden and noticed that he carried a revolver. Werner, he said, explained he had a right to carry the weapon, as he was a licensed private watchman.

Detective Sergeant Sheller, to whom Werner surrendered after reaching the city, testified that he smelt alcohol on Werner's breath. On cross-examination he was asked if this odor might not have been conveyed to Werner's mouth by Brinkmeyer's hand when Brinkmeyer struck him. Sheller said he had no opinion on that point.

MONUMENT TO CHINESE-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP

This granite arch, near Chefoo, China, bears the following inscription:

"DEDICATED TO AND ERECTED IN HONOR OF THE CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
OUR FRIENDS ACROSS THE SEA
MAY THERE BE ETERNAL PEACE BETWEEN THE TWO PEOPLES"

The Chinese Puzzle of 400,000,000 Mortals

"Whoever understands China socially, politically, economically, and religiously, holds the key to the world's politics for the next five centuries."—Former Secretary of State, JOHN HAY.

WITH SEVENTY THOUSAND Chinese studying and working among us; with "the Open Door" in China standing as the great dominant American policy in the Far East; with the traditional friendship between China and the United States constantly finding new expression, it still remains true to-day that to practically all Americans China, with her four hundred millions of human beings, is a vast unknown, a mystery unfathomable. Never has so good an opportunity come to Americans to know and understand China as now, when Japan and China have been brought together at a conference table of the world's great powers in the Capital of the American Republic. Therefore THE LITERARY DIGEST has prepared a complete presentation of China, the Country, the People, their Industries, their Ideals, and their Relations with the Rest of the World.

Americans Now May Know the Whole Story of China

A HOARY HISTORY

Countless ages back, lost in the mists of antiquity, thousands of years before the Christian Era, the Chinese people began,—no one knows how. Did they spring from the soil, or migrate from ancient Turkey, or Syria, or did they actually descend from Noah, after the Flood? Their many centuries of known history is full of wonderful happenings. An outline of it is given in this special number of THE DIGEST.

THE WHITE RAIDS ON CHINA

"The story of China for the past hundred years has been largely the story of her spoliation by the white races." To all who are accustomed to think of Japan's "extension of influence" as the chiefest of China's troubles, the article describing "Europe's Encroachments on China's Sovereignty" will bring an astounding revelation.

AMERICA: FRIEND and PROTECTOR

During all the troublesome years of European and Japanese encroachments and demands on China, only one great power in the world has stood by her as her protector, and is her protector to-day, and that power is America. A splendid article tells what America has done and is doing to maintain "the Open Door" and to protect China from voracious raids of foreign powers.

SHANTUNG

The cradle of Chinese Civilization; the Holy Land of the Chinese People; the birthplace of the silk industry, an Eden of agriculture; an Aladdin's Cave of precious metals and stones; the heart that controls the internal commerce, and communications of the entire Chinese Empire; one of the richest and most densely populated provinces of the earth; self-governed for five thousand years—There are many reasons "Why They Struggle for Shantung," and the article under that title is full of surprising information, illustrated with a specially-drawn map.

JAPAN'S 21 DEMANDS

Probably not five persons in every ten thousand Americans could name even three of the famous "twenty-one demands" imposed upon China by Japan. Yet these demands have the most vital relationship to any settlement of the great "Problem of the Far East." They have been variously interpreted by the powers concerned. One of the most important articles in this week's DIGEST reveals "The Secret of the Twenty-One Demands."

CHINA'S RELIGIONS, CUSTOMS, ART

To know China it is necessary to know her religions. A clear explanation of the part which Buddhism, Taoism, Confucianism, Ancestor Worship, and Christianity play in Chinese life is contained in a special article on the subject. "Men and Manners in China" is another colorful article, full of interesting incidents. The "Peculiar Qualities of Chinese Art" are instructively described.

UNBINDING THE WOMEN

Along with the crippling of Chinese women's feet and the custom of killing or selling girl-babies, has gone a general subordination of the whole sex. But women in China are being unbound, physically, mentally, morally, and socially. A most instructive article tells how the transformation is being wrought.

SCIENCE IN CHINA

While the people in Europe were going about dressed in the skins of wild animals and using pieces of stone tied to sticks for tools and weapons, the Chinese were a highly developed and skilful nation. They were the inventors of gunpowder, the mariner's compass, the art of printing, the making of porcelain, and the manufacture of silk. Read about their casting of metals, their electrical industries, their medicine, their curious treatment of fractures, and many other marvels and oddities.

A LANGUAGE OF PICTURES

Chinese written characters are full of expressive symbolism and piquant commentaries on social and industrial life. There is a picture character for "man" and another for "field." Both put together mean "farmer." Combine the character which means "word" with "man" and we have a man and his word, or "honesty." The symbols for "woman" and "son" together mean "good." Two of the symbols for "woman," together, mean "quarrel." Three of them together stand for "gossip." An interesting article reproduces and explains many of these story characters of the Chinese language.

An Exclusive Map, in Colors, of the Divided Republic

No such map has been published in this country before. It shows at a glance the provinces under the Peiking Government, those under the Canton Government, and those which are independent or neutral. The leading article tells the whole story of the Divided Republic. Another valuable map shows the Province of Shantung, with its railways, roads, cable lines, and grand canal, as well as the location of its iron and coal fields and other mines. Still another map shows just where the zones of commercial influence of the various European Powers in China are located. These maps are of infinite value in making plain the real situation in China. The flag of the Chinese Republic is reproduced in correct colors on the cover.

The Piker basketball team will make its first local appearance of the season tonight at Francis Grinnell College, where it will meet the Grinnell College quintet. The tip-off will come at 8 o'clock.

According to records of earlier contests, the two teams are about evenly matched. Although Coach Applegan's Pikers have a slight edge on comparative scores, both quintets have dropped their first Conference struggle. The Pikers, however, were defeated by the strongest teams in the Conference at their home floors. This condition between evenly matched teams is generally estimated to give the home team an advantage. A want of good substitute material has been a constant difficulty to the Piker squad, which still numbers less than 10.

In spite of four defeats, the Piker team has not been broken and the team is still confident of recovering and ending the season with success. There still remain 12 Conference games, eight of which will be played here. The Pikers have been practicing faithfully for tonight's battle, with the hope of making their first appearance at home a success.

The probable starting lineup for the Grinnell game will be: Thompson and Linnemeyer, forwards; Crist, center; Thumser and Lefter, guards; Schnau, Berry and Thym, Coach Applegan's three first string relief men, are certain to see action.

Kenrick Defeats Chaminade.
Kenrick High School won its second game of the season over Chaminade College High, winning the contest played last night 25-21. Kenrick ran up a margin that Chaminade was unable to overcome in the early parts of the game. Every member of the Kenrick team played good basketball, with Muehling the outstanding star.

In a preliminary, the Kenrick juniors defeated the Chaminade seconds, 12-4.

Kenrick's next game will be against McKinley next Tuesday.

"BABE" RUTH TRIES TO ARRANGE CONFERENCE WITH JUDGE LANDIS

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—"Babe" Ruth has decided that he went too far in violating the rules of organized baseball by playing post-season games and is attempting to persuade Judge Landis, baseball commissioner, through a personal appeal, to mitigate the punishment of suspension until May 20 and a fine of more than $5000.

Ruth, who is appearing at theater here this week, Wednesday telephoned Judge Landis' office in an effort to arrange a personal interview with him, but the judge was confined to his home with a bad cold.

A second call was made yesterday, but the judge still was sick. The indications are that Ruth may not be able to reach him.

If no interview can be arranged here, he will take up his case with the judge by mail.

PADDOCK WILL TRY FOR 440-YARD RECORD

By the Associated Press.
SALEM, Ore., Jan. 20.—Charlie Paddock, University of Southern California sprinter, who holds present records in the 100 and 200 yard dashes, probably will go after the 440-yard record of 42.5 seconds, held by Ted Meredith, some time the coming season.

This is the announcement made here by Dean Cromwell, Paddock's trainer and track coach at the University of Southern California.

Did Heredity or Perseverance Make Him Champion?

"YOUNG" JAKE SCHAEFER.

Wray's Column

Heredity and Jake Schaefer Jr.

THE success of Young Jake Schaefer in the sphere of sport that his father made famous—balkline billiards—has doubtless suggested to many interested persons the thought that his billiard ability is inherited. That idea can be dismissed. Any scientist will tell you it is not possible to inherit SKILL in anything. What Young Jake did inherit was his father's mental and physical qualities, particularly those that lent themselves to the development of billiard technique.

Jake senior's contribution to Jake junior's billiard future did not extend one jot further than that. It has been said that Jake the elder instructed Jake junior and laid the foundation of Young Jake's present success.

That is an error. I knew Jake the elder, and Jake junior when the latter was a mere kiddie. He toured with his father at times, and absorbed some of the billiard atmosphere. But he was a willful boy and did not like the game; nor did his father enjoy practicing upon him. The "Wizard" died before the lad had reached an age when he was able to take a keen interest in the pastime.

Then he was slowly awakened by friends to the wonderful advertising value his father's reputation would lend to the billiard career of his son; then he began to practice.

It is probable that the chief contributing cause to Young Jake's rise was his experience of three or more seasons in the billiard academy of Eddie Grauey, in San Francisco. This was an establishment where paid experts played, and the public bet on them. There Jake Jr. met some of the leading experts of the billiard world and learned not only technique, but acquired the competitive poise needed to be a title candidate. He became a "money player."

It was Jake senior's long suit; and the academy developed this latent trait in Young Jake.

The Case of Hoppe.
WILLIE Hoppe, who was all different, Hoppe took to the game as a child. When still so small that he had to stand on a soap box to cue the ball, I saw him defeat a veteran billiardist, George Schaefer, at the old Grand billiard hall, Ed 17. Hoppe was world's champion, winning from the French master, Vignaux. And for 17 years he was supreme in the billiard world.

Then along came Schaefer. Hoppe loved the game as a boy. He had infinite patience for practice, a fine disposition and habits beyond compare. Schaefer was nearly his antithesis in all these things.

WEBSTER PLAYS WELLSTON BASKET TEAM TONIGHT

The fourth round of games in the county basketball league will be played tonight. Webster, with three straight victories, looks to be the outstanding favorite for the county honors and should be able to dispose of Wellston without great trouble.

The return of Stewart and Payne to Webster has nearly doubled the scoring power of the team.

Clayton's defeat at the hands of Kirkwood last week was a great surprise, but the five expects to defeat Maplewood tonight. Clayton has a great scoring machine.

University City is favored to trim Ferguson; Kirkwood has an easy game at Ritenour.

BOXING BRIEFS

Mike Kramer, a very promising graduate amateur bantamweight boxer of this city, has been matched to box Young O'Neill eight rounds, no decision, at Murphyboro, Ill., tomorrow night. The bout was arranged by Matchmaker Jimmy Regan, for the Moose Club lodge at that city.

Since Pewee Kalser was given a draw only, in his bout with Bobby Hughes at Memphis Monday night, local promoters have been on the trail of Kalser's manager trying to get him to match Pewee with Patsy Flanagan, who once gained a decision over Hughes in a bout at the South Broadway Club here. The match has been proposed before, but the Kalser camp frowned upon it.

Another drop in the high price of boxing may be announced soon by the Lafayette Club on the occasion of its match of Jan. 25 with Roy Moore and Al Walker as principals.

All But Two of New Draft Plan To Be Rejected

Caledonians Were Born in Scotland By Three Minors

Falls and Jones, Who Came From England, Are the Only Exceptions.

Indications Are International and Mid-West Bodies Will Follow Coast's Lead.

DETROIT, Jan. 20.—The Caledonians, who play Seulings Sunday in the Western final of the U. S. F. A. competition, form one of the oldest soccer clubs in Michigan. The team owns a record of which it is justly proud. A year ago the Caledonians established a precedent for Michigan by running into the semifinal round, singularly enough against their present opponent. This was regarded as a meritorious performance for a purely amateur team, without the opportunity for systematic training enjoyed by the professional organization against which they were pitted.

Caledonians' present team embraced eight of the players who participated in the competition last year. The three new men, Oliver, obtained from Walkerville; Falls, late with Roses, and D. Sutherland, from Pontiac, having improved the lineup to such an extent that many critics are of the opinion that they are 50 per cent better than a year ago.

The are at present holders of the Charity cup, which they won the first time it was offered, and they have always been well in the running of the Detroit and District League.

The Michigan State competition, which their players have won with the exception of two being born in Scotland; Falls and Jones being English. Prior to coming to this country some of them were connected with well-known clubs in Great Britain.

Halfback-Kenneth Stars.
Seay, who has kept goal for them for a number of years, although small, is regarded as the best tender in the district, and has been chosen for many international bouts.

In D. Sutherland and Cowan they have a complete understanding of each other's play, their exhibition of kicking and tackling of which the heavy Arden line last Sunday, being a feature of the game.

Neither Seay, nor the first half halves is above medium height, but a more hard working line would be desired. The whole of the Caledonians is really in this district, and it is really in this district that Caledonians are strongest.

Falls, Jones and Mullen generally contrive to place the ball to the best advantage for their forwards, rather than indulging in big kicking without any regard for proper direction.

Dietz's contract, which expired Nov. 2, 1921, was about to be renewed when Prof. Ayers telegraphed the Purdue authorities of Hanley's action, it was said.

By the Associated Press.
SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 20.—Prof. Leslie J. Ayers, chairman of the faculty athletic commission of the University of Washington and Pacific Coast representative of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, declared today that he had declined to renew the contract of Coach Dietz, who had been coaching the football team at Seattle, Everett, Sedro-Woolley and Pendleton, Ore., had been offered a flat salary of $100 a month to play football at Purdue University.

As a result of his disclosure of these facts in a letter to acting President H. W. Marshall of Purdue University, Prof. Ayers says, Coach Dietz will not be retained at Purdue. A telegram from Marshall stated that Purdue "does not countenance such action" and declared that boys who had been approached by Dietz would not be allowed to enter Purdue.

KANSAS FIVE DEFEATS NEBRASKA AND TAKES LEAD IN VALLEY RACE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 20.—The Kansas Jayhawkers edged their way into victory, today, in the first round of the conference basketball race by trouncing the Cornhuskers of Nebraska, 25 to 18, here last night. Capt. Rudy Smith, who was in the lineup, was the star of the game, scoring 12 points.

Other branches of sport might be combed and would yield equal results. The bout was arranged by the French master, Vignaux. And for 17 years he was supreme in the billiard world.

Champion Wilson Must Fear to Box Greb, Edgren Says

Title-Holder's Failure to Stand by Contract Invites This Conclusion.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 20.—BOXING bouts in Cleveland under a new ruling by Mayor Fred Kohler will be for men only, or for women only.

Cleveland Women Must Hold Their Own Shows, To Witness Boxing Bouts

"In no case," the Mayor said, "will a bout be permitted before a crowd of both men and women. Violation of the rule will mean revoking the license of the club, and if women must see boxing bouts," the Mayor said, "let them arrange to have them witnessed entirely by members of their own sex."

By Robert Edgren.
There was just one reason for Johnny Wilson's backing out of the match with Harry Greb. Manager Killian says that Richard forced Wilson into the match by giving him the $25,000 purse for the Downey bout in New Jersey, that was held up by order of the New Jersey Boxing Commission, only on condition that Wilson would take on Greb at the Garden.

Killian intimates that he felt peeved over being forced into a match he didn't want, and being safely back in Boston with the money, felt justified in canceling the bout.

All wrong! Having made the agreement, Killian and Wilson should go through with it. The plain fact is that Wilson is a second-rate champion, and that he fears Greb would beat him. A champion who cannot win a match because he knows he's not good enough to have a chance should be barred from holding a title. No matter how good his technical claim to the title may be, the public will not recognize him as a champion unless he delivers the goods. The boxing commissions of 17 states have shown no sympathy for Wilson's action by backing him from further competition.

Not a Real Champion.
Imagine Kid McCoy sidestepping Greb. Imagine Tommy Ryan hiding behind the kind of an excuse Wilson offers for flunking. Imagine Rob Fitzsimmons showing the white feather. And when would Papke or Ketchel have run to cover to avoid a Harry Greb or anyone else?

Would Frank Klaus have gone in hiding if a man like Greb was his rival? We used to have some real champions in the middleweight class, but of late years the middleweights have been a poor lot, and hardly worth looking at.

Al McCoy was a joke. Mike O'Dowd was a game, sturdy fighter, but lacking in skill. As for Wilson, I see no reason why Richard should want to put him on at all, with anybody. Or why the public should pay to see him backing around a ring.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 20.—Seven amateur boxers of Pittsburgh left this morning for Columbus, O., to take part in the inter-city tournament there.

Mr. White:
"I can't afford to have my white outer garments cleaned daily, so I'm going to make it every other day. If those outer garments were dark, I'd make it every other week."

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 20.—Brilliant shooting marked yesterday's three events in the Midwinter Target Tournament at the Pinehurst Gun Club. S. M. Crothers of Philadelphia won the special 18-yard 75-target event without a miss and four contestants in the 50-target special ended with perfect scores, while W. R. Brooks of Columbia, S. C., had to break 55 targets out of 100 to win a preliminary handicap event.

RUPPERT DENIES YANKS MADE OFFER FOR LEWIS

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Jacob Rupprecht, president of the New York Yankees, denied on his return from Chicago yesterday that the club had made any offer to the Salt Lake City club for outfielder George Lewis, its manager, who, it was reported, the Yankees were anxious to buy for $25,000. Lewis formerly played with the Yankees.

Rupprecht said he and Huston had seen Commissioner Landis in Chicago, but that the suggestions of Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel had not been discussed.

Last Night's Fights

At Jersey City—Tamm, Larkin, Minnesota lumberjack, knocked out Homer Burke of Pittsburgh in one round.

New York—Pepper Martin, Brooklyn, won a decision over Kid Sullivan, also of Brooklyn, in 12 rounds.

At Wausau, Wis.—Natty Smith of Racine beat Al Dale of Kansas City, Mo., in 10 rounds.

STEEL SHARES FEATURE ACTIVE STOCK MARKET

Gulf States Steel Spectacular Issue in Million-Share Day on Exchange—Sugar and Metal Lists Show 2 to 5 Points Gains Merger Gossip Factor.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Evening Post in its comprehensive financial review today says:

"With sales running well over a million shares, the steel market was featured by excited speculative buying for certain groups of industrial shares. Steels and sugars furnished most of the excitement, the movement being helped in both cases by rumors of mergers. During the early trading, the independent steel stocks were conspicuous. Gulf States continuing its spectacular run-up for a while and then dropping 20 points. The other independents kept firm, however, and toward the close showed gains of from 2 to 5 points. Steel common gained the movement in the afternoon and reached 88 for a net advance of 2 points. Among the sugars, gains of from 2 to 5 points were made. Motor stocks and several other specialties also were strong. Rails, however, were quiet and somewhat heavy. Bonds also were quiet and slightly lower. Money ruled at 5 per cent throughout.

Merger Irregular, France Off.

The unfavorable impression which Premier Poincaré's somewhat rigid declaration of nationalistic policy made at London was reflected in the foreign exchange market. His emphasis on an unyielding interpretation of the Versailles treaty and his reservations regarding French participation in the League of Nations caused a general relaxation in rates. Sterling was quoted a cent lower in London before the opening, and the price being $121. A further decline occurred in our market, quotations dropping to $120.9. Most of the present movement, however, came from an unexpected rally of 25 points and then recovering to 20 points for a net loss of 5 points. The other continental currencies were generally lower. Trading was fairly active and an increase in the volume of commercial business was reported.

Reserve Bank Ratio Up.

A gain of 12 per cent in the reserve ratio of the combined Federal Reserve system during the past week brings the improvement in ratio for the past two weeks up to nearly 5 per cent. While this increase is large, it must be considered in the light of the decline in ratio of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York during December. Going back to December when the ratio stood at 73.1 per cent, it is evident that an increase has been approximately half of 1 per cent. This is just about the rate at which the ratio rose during the autumn months. It follows, accordingly, that the reasonable view of the present banking situation and money market is that it represents no sudden change in the general situation, but, rather, the logical continuation of a movement which has been going on during the last year. On this basis one may expect a continuation of the gradual easing in money rates, a tendency which will, of course, be subject to minor interruptions. The principal changes in the consolidated statement of the 12 reserve banks for the past week are reductions of $65,000,000 in receivables and of $54,000,000 in note circulation.

Wall Street News and Comment —SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—For an hour or so in today's session the stock market gave a very good imitation of an old-fashioned "bull movement." There were occasional bursts of speculation as any performance of the "war bride" speculation of 1915-1916, or of earlier days, which would stir the most tremendous excitement over reports and rumors of railway and industrial combinations.

Today, under very different conditions in the business world, it was again the suggestion of merger deals which aroused the speculative community. It is known that some of these stories are well founded. Negotiations for a union of the independent steel producers have been in progress for more than a month. It is just what companies are involved, and at what prices their stocks will be taken in, are matters which probably have not yet been determined and not being well settled, they afford plenty of room for the indulgence of speculative imagination.

There is nothing new, either, about the reports of some sort of a copper merger, which, despite instant denials, the street is disposed to discuss. The discussion of a possible deal between the Cuban growers of sugar and the American refiners, were for the most part a brand-new contribution to the market's news today.

There was some profit-taking in late afternoon dealings in stocks which was quite to be expected after such an advance in the market earlier in the day. But these offerings were absorbed with very little reaction and interest was sustained by the appearance of fresh buying in new directions not so much exploited. In the last hour the shares of fertilizer companies and kindred issues were taken in hand, likewise the bi-unit stocks. Most of the day, however, very strong and earlier favorites like American Sugar and the steel stocks made their best prices in the trading toward the close.

CHARLES AND ZITA ARE TOLD TO BEHAVE

Allied Ambassadors Threaten More Remote Exile for Former Emperor Charles and Wife.

By the Associated Press. BERNE, Jan. 20.—Former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary and his wife, Zita, will be deported to an island much more remote from Europe than Madeira, to which they are now exiled, if there is any further attempt at restoration of their throne in the states formed from the old empire.

Zita, who came here to be at the bedside of her son, Robert, has so been informed by the Swiss Government, which transmitted to her a statement made by the British, French and Italian Ambassadors here. The Portuguese Government, it was learned here, has sent a similar message to Charles at Funchal.

Zita is expected to leave here next Monday or Tuesday with her children and probably will go immediately to Funchal by way of Paris.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Jan. 20.—The declaration of the allied Ambassadors at Bern threatening the removal of former Emperor Charles and his wife, Zita, to a more remote island than Madeira, is based on the recent action of the Allied Council of Ambassadors here.

Members of the council today said no great danger was felt that the former Empress would make any immediate move toward the restoration of herself and her husband to the Hungarian throne, but it was deemed wise, as a precautionary measure, to make their attitude known. Zita will be permitted to remain in Switzerland, it was said, until Jan. 29.

It is generally believed here that she will return to Madeira quietly because of the delicate condition of her health.

She and her husband both are known to be without a surplus of money. Her brother, Prince Sixtus, is understood to have counseled her, when she recently passed through Paris, against any further efforts at regaining the Hungarian throne, pointing out the folly of such action in the face of strong military measures that would certainly be taken by the Little Entente.

BETTER BUSINESS BY APRIL PREDICTED BY AN ECONOMIST

Harvard College Business Dean Also Thinks Trend of Prices Will Be Upward.

A prediction that substantial improvement in business but not a boom, with upward trend of prices, would set in between February and April, more likely in the latter month, was made yesterday by Wallace R. Dunham, dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard College, in an address at the Rotary Club luncheon at Hotel Statler.

He said this prediction was based on studies of business conditions by Harvard economists similar to the studies which caused the economists in the fall of 1919 to predict that the era of business expansion then in full swing would end within a few months.

Dean Dunham also spoke last night at the annual dinner of the Harvard Club of St. Louis at the University Club.

CHICAGO COUNCIL "DRY" CHIEF PLANS 200,000 BODY IN STATE

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Two hundred thousand men and women throughout Illinois will be organized to support only such candidates for public offices as will pledge themselves to strict enforcement of the State and national prohibition laws, Alderman John Lyle, "dry" leader of the Chicago City Council, announced today.

Alderman Lyle's statement followed the announcement a few days ago by Alderman Anton Cermak, "wet" leader in the Council, that plans were under way to place on the congressional ballot next fall the light wine and beer question.

WEALTHY STOCK BUYER BOUND OVER UNDER MURDER CHARGE

He is charged with killing Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Brucklin, whose bodies were found Dec. 11 in their farmhouse near Decorah, riddled with shot from a shotgun.

How to Be Happy Though Married

By William McMahon
DIGGING INTO THE PAST

SOMETIMES it requires more than a soft voice to turn away wrath. Sometimes it takes a big-nosed police officer to do it. This latter species is handy to have at beck and call, not merely for self-protection, but occasionally to awaken to sanity a wild-eyed young man who imagines things.

Surely it was a half-frenzied man who burst into my office and straightaway began a recital of his woes and wrongs. He was unkempt and pale and trembling. He talked in a voice that alternately choked and shrieked, and clenched and unclenched his hands. Let me tell the story, if possible, as he told it to me.

He came to the city from a village of the West when about 20. He got a job and lived in a furnished room. Not being a mixer, he dragged out many lonely hours in his room of winters, and sat in parks of summer evenings. He had been well enough reared, thanks to the village church and schoolhouse, and wholesome home surroundings. Books were scarce, and the few that were available were histories of wars, and poems on death, and admonitions concerning the worm that never dies. In consequence of all these, he was an old man at 20, grim and serious. He looked upon life as a serious proposition.

Nevertheless, he held down his job satisfactorily, and saved something out of his weekly wage. Perhaps there were times when he longed to talk to someone and have someone talk to him, but his social affairs were confined to observations on the weather with his landlady, and a word or two with the waitress at the restaurant.

But fate had something in store for him. One summer Sunday afternoon as he sat moodily on a park bench a girl sat down beside him. She, too, was in a mood. A friendly squirrel afforded the medium of introduction, and before long the youth and maiden were acquainted, each setting forth scraps of autobiography to the other.

The girl also was from the country, but had been a long time in the city. She, too, lived in a furnished room. She came to the city in response to an advertisement in a paper for a certain beautiful type of girl to go in the movies. She sent her fee for enrollment and waited for a letter. The letter came and threw her into an ecstasy. She was selected as one of the cast in the Great Drama.

She hurried to town and waited. She kept on waiting. Her money dwindled and she sought employment from an advertising bureau. Divers and sundry "positions" were offered her, some of which she had sense enough not to tackle. She found an opportunity to do hand embroidery for a plump and elderly woman who paid her the sum of 75 cents apiece to do babies' dresses, and did not find much relief in the business. She was still waiting for the call of the movie manager. This was her story.

The young man waited hectically for her to finish, and then plunged into his story. There was common ground and mutual sympathy. They were in the throes of adventure, but they were comfortable and contented.

After a while the two parted, agreeing to meet again at the same hour a week hence. They met and talked some more, and it was all wonderful. After three or four meetings they became engaged to be married. This came about naturally as the morning glory meets the Eastern sun. Married they were, and then came the little home and the kitchenette and the installment furniture dealer.

The years passed and they were very happy. On this particular, epoch-making morning, they awoke early, and lay in bed chatting, before the alarm clock made its commands to them to arise and go forth. Probably they talked of the wonderful miracle of their love for each other. Then something possessed the husband to put this question to his wife:

"Dearest, tell me—there is nothing that you are concealing from me, is there?"

"Of course not, silly," she answered, languidly. But the husband persisted—

"Am I the first man you ever loved?"

"You are the first man—the only one."

"Am I the only man that ever kissed you and held you in his arms?"

"Of course you are, dear, the only one."

"Are you telling me the truth?" his eyes looking into hers searchingly. A little alarmed, she assured him again, although she might have hesitated just a trifle—just enough to inflame his suspicions. Still, he was not satisfied.

"Will you swear to that?" His voice was husky. At this the wife showed signs of anger. "What's getting into you, anyway? Why do you insult me by trying to make me do something like that? Of course I will swear, but—"

At this the husband leaped out of bed, rushed into another room, and came back bearing a Bible. He held it out to her.

"Will you swear on this Bible that I am the first and only man that ever kissed you and held you in his arms, and that you yielded to?"

Dazed, bewildered, her face flaming, she sat upright in bed. Her eyes registered not indignation alone, but fear as well. He missed the indignation and read only the fear. This he interpreted as a sign of guilt.

"Then you won't swear?" he shouted, his eyes blazing.

"No," she answered, and turned her head away.

Neither one of them said any more. He dressed tremblingly and left his wife without explanation, and came direct to me. After he had struggled through his story, he would up with this statement:

"I can't stand it. I am desperate and don't know what I might do. I think I ought to be detained somewhere for fear I will do something awfully violent."

"I'm in a frenzy—can't think—can't reason. Oh, what is there for me to do?" He suggested what a prominent Western lawyer called "dementia Americana."

What good were words in such a case as this? I picked up the telephone, called up O'Brien of the Police Department and told him to come right over. I put the phone down and said:

"Sit still. We will see what can be done."

It is strange that the thing which should have frightened him at this stage, namely, the call for a police officer, seemed to calm him. This is a fact well known to police officers and criminal lawyers. I went on with my writing.

After a while O'Brien came. O'Brien, with the top-horn voice, bull-neck and steel eyes.

"Inspector," I said, "this man thinks he ought to be detained so that he will not commit violence." I turned to my writing. O'Brien knew what to do and what to say. He planked himself in front of the young man, hands in pocket, legs wide apart, eyes looking down boring holes into the discomfited husband.

"What's yer story? Out, wid it!" shouted O'Brien.

The husband tried to re-tell the tale, but what a mess he made of it. The theatrical element was gone from him. As he told it this time he looked mean and small and suspicious. He seemed to sense all this. The glamour had flown. As he ended, he failed to mention the fact that he ought to be detained for fear of committing some violence.

"You poor damned fool," said O'Brien, pulling out a pair of handcuffs.

"Wait a moment, Inspector," said I. "Leave us alone a minute." O'Brien went into the outer room.

"Young man," I said, "murderers row is full of such fellows as you. But you seem to have come to your senses already. I don't have to tell you how foolish you have been, do I?"

A weak voice said, "No."

It isn't necessary for me to tell you how criminal it was for you to cross-question your wife about her life before you were married. You insulted her even by mentioning it. Any true woman would have refused to answer you. Do you see it?

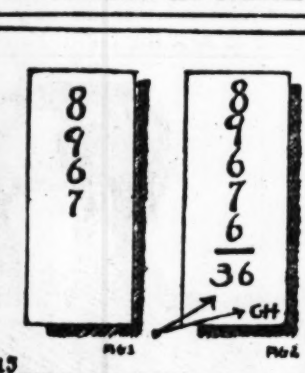

"Oh, yes, yes," he said, "I see it. Don't let me be taken away by this fellow out there. I want the chance of apologizing to my wife, and I'll never speak to her on the subject again."

Well, we shook hands on it, and he went away, reorganized.

Just by way of rounding out this story, let me urge a few facts to young married people. Never dig into the past. Yesterday is the dead-end thing in the world—the present is dying, and the only live thing is the future. Turn your faces to the east and greet the rising sun and forget the lilies that have grown dim and indistinct in the west. This story might show young girls as well as boys how necessary it is for them always to be careful and always to be right, so that nothing can come to them in later years to embarrass them and to make them unhappy.

AFTER-DINNER TRICKS

No. 15—To Find a Total of Secret Figures.

A NUMBER is written on a slip of paper which is folded and given to some one to hold. Various persons then set down numbers between one and 10 on another sheet of paper. Any one's initials are written on this sheet for identification. The figures are added up and found to equal the unknown number written on the folded slip.

Suppose the number the performer wrote on the slip was 36. He watches the figures that the spectators are writing and when their total reaches 27 or more (which is within 9 of 36), he takes the slip and asks for some one's initials. As he writes the initials on the paper he secretly adds the missing number at the bottom of the column, and thus brings the total to 36.

RABBIT STEW

SELECT a young pair of rabbits, have them cleaned and cut up for stewing. Wash them and put on a stew with a large sliced onion, a minced stalk of celery and a salted carrot. Add salt, pepper and a spoonful of curry powder. When they have cooked 20 minutes add six potatoes, thickly sliced. Ten minutes later cover the top with dumplings, cover and cook steadily 15 minutes. Lift the dumplings around the edge of a platter, fill in with the stew, thicken the gravy and pour over all.

TWENTY-EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.
Tommy stopped and looked up at her, frowning.

"I can't—I want to speak to Uncle Clem. Where's John? Why don't you go with him?" He waited, and as she did not answer, he added slyly: "Got tired of each other already, eh?"

He laughed at the anger in her face and limped on to the study. He put his head around the door and seeing Mr. Harding there alone, went in, shutting the door carefully behind him; then he gave an excited rush across the room.

"Uncle, I've got something to tell you. I've found out something—something about John." His voice was tremulous with excitement, his thin face was flushed.

Mr. Harding looked up from his paper.

"Well, what has John been doing now?" he asked indulgently.

Tommy poured out an incoherent story.

"I was along the lane this morning—Twynford lane, and John was talking to a man in the road—a fat man with a car—and he said that the real John Smith was the man who had died in the woods that afternoon, you remember?" He said that he'd taken his place and that Anne and everyone thought he was the real chap. He said that he'd played a fine trick on us all, hoodwinked us.

"He stopped to get his breath, but Mr. Harding showed no surprise; he just listened with a faintly amused smile that seemed to exasperate the boy, for he broke out again excitedly:

"Oh, yes, yes, you speak? Why don't you say something? He's a fraud, I tell you—he's not John Smith at all—he's not the man we think he is."

Harding spoke then, with a cynical smile.

"My dear boy, all this is no news to me. I've known it for weeks, almost from the first moment John—"

Tommy's mouth fell open; he gasped in amazement.

"You knew? Then why did you let him stay? Why didn't you tell Anne? Why have you let it go on?"

"I chose to let him stay to suit my own purpose," Mr. Harding said quietly. "I knew if he was given the chance he would do as much for himself in the end, and already he is doing it quite nicely and finally. Fernie knows all about him, too! Fernie recognized him as the man who was walking away from the body of the real John Smith in the woods that afternoon."

"You don't mean . . . Fernie doesn't think that he murdered him—did he?" Tommy gasped.

"Not quite as bad as that," Mr. Harding answered. "The man died of heart failure right enough, but John—this so-called John—took his letters and pocket case, and apparently there was sufficient evidence in them to allow him to carry on his game comfortably for a time. Now I think he's got him very thoroughly. I think he has reached the end of his tether."

"And Anne . . . does she know?"

Mr. Harding's face clouded.

"Poor Anne!—she has no idea—at least, I believe not. That's the trouble, Tommy—I'm afraid when she knows, it will break her heart."

Tommy said nothing. There's plenty of other fish in the sea.

"Your sister waited for this man—or the man she believes him to be—19 years," Mr. Harding answered, sorrowfully.

There was a little silence, then he put down his paper and arose.

"Not a word of this to anyone, Tommy, mind! I'm not going to give the man a chance to get away as easily as he came. He's an impostor, and he's got to pay. He's had a good run for his money."

"He's a concealed beast—I hate him," Tommy said savagely. "He told the man he was talking to today that I was a mean little worm. Mr. Harding frowned.

"I must admit that at first I liked the fellow," he said with a shade of regret in his voice. "He impressed me very favorably. On the whole, I believe he is a better man than the real John Smith."

"But—how on earth did you find it all out?" Tommy asked. "I don't see how you could have found it out."

"There have been many little things," Mr. Harding said slowly, "one of them being that Foster—Geoffrey Foster—recognized him as a man he had seen in a gambling saloon in San Francisco last spring."

and according to the letters Anne received from him, Smith was the other side of the world at that time. But, of course, most of the evidence I have got will have to be proved. Then there is the fact that he can play the piano and John Smith never could . . . oh, and many other small incidents by which he has given himself away again and again. To begin with, he is too young! Smith would have been 38 if he had lived, and this man is 10 years younger at least, and then the truth will come out in good time, and mind, Tommy, you're not to say one single word of anything you have heard—especially to your sister."

Tommy growled something unintelligible.

"She wouldn't believe me if I did," he said. "She quarrels with him like old Nick. I know—and she's always crying when she thinks there's nobody about, but she's dead keen on him all the same."

He turned to the door, looking back at Mr. Harding to say grimly: "I jolly well hope he does time for it."

"There can be no open scandal," Mr. Harding said quickly. "For all our sakes. My only wish is to prevent things from going too far, and to save that poor girl unhappiness."

"It's too late for that already," Tommy said slyly, as he dragged himself out of the room.

He met the Fortune Hunter coming in from the garden, he asked for his sister, Tommy? he asked.

Tommy looked back over his shoulder with a sly smile. "I don't think she's gone on the river with Foster," he said, maliciously.

One of the maids in passing intervened.

"Miss Anne is in the drawing room." She shot Tommy an indignant look, which he responded by a furtive grimace.

The Fortune Hunter walked into the drawing room and shut the door behind him. Anne was leaning back in a cushioned chair in the corner of a settee; she looked weary and there were dark shadows around her eyes.

She had hardened her heart against him, and determined to keep up the barrier of constraint, but something in the questioning smile he gave her broke down her strong resolution.

She was naturally impulsive, and she broke out tremulously, almost before she was aware of it:

"John! what is the matter with this house tonight? Why don't you tell me something about it to me?"

"If something dreadful is going to happen, I dare say you'll laugh at me, but—oh, I'm sure—sure that I am right."

He stood behind the sofa, looking down at her with eyes that tried to be only impartial, as he answered quietly:

"I think you're tired and unstrung. People often imagine things when they are not very well." She shook her head impatiently.

"It's not that—and you know it's not. It's something to do with you! I've felt it all day. It's as if—as if—I can't explain myself—I can't!"

"Don't try, my dear," the Fortune Hunter said harshly. "Be a fatalist like I am, and say, 'What is to be, will be.' Life is too short to worry about anything too much."

"Yes, I think you're right," she said slowly. "I only wish—I wish you'd taught me that—19 years ago."

"Ten years ago!" The Fortune Hunter echoed Anne's words blankly. "Not that—and you know it's not. It's something to do with you! I've felt it all day. It's as if—as if—I can't explain myself—I can't!"

Chatterer Becomes Himself Again

Hope is like the sunlight's ray;
It chases all the gloom away.

—Chatterer.

SUCH a change as came over Chatterer the Red Squirrel when Tommy Tit the Chickadee told him of the food in the Old Orchard! His eyes glinted. His tail no longer drooped. He jumped down from the ice-covered stump and started after Tommy Tit as fast as he could go.

"Dee, dee, dee!" called Tommy Tit merrily as he flitted from tree to tree ahead of Chatterer.

Chatterer said nothing. He needed all his breath for running. But as he ran he did some thinking.

"How stupid of me to have forgotten Farmer Brown's Boy," thought he. "I might have known he wouldn't let any of us suffer if he could help it. We can always count on him. I don't know how I came to forget him."

It was a long way from where Tommy Tit had found Chatterer over to the Old Orchard and along one side of that to the corner nearest Farmer Brown's dooryard and Chatterer's legs ached before he got there. You remember he had done a great deal of running about already that morning. But he didn't stop to rest once. His stomach wouldn't let him. No, sir; it wouldn't. It kept urging him to run faster.

Long before he got there he knew that Tommy Tit had told the truth. He could hear Yank Yank the Nut-batch. He caught a glimpse of the blue coat of Sammy Jay. His own cousin, Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, was barking joyfully. Chatterer wondered if he, too, had lost all his stores of nuts and acorns.

At last Chatterer arrived. What he saw seemed to be too good to be true. Corn, beautiful yellow corn, was scattered along the icy old stone wall. Fastened in several trees were little shelves and on each was more of that yellow corn, not to mention hickory nuts. These were the only things Chatterer had eyes for just then, but there were other things—nuts and grain and seeds, something for each of the feathered folk as well as those wearing fur. And it wasn't necessary for anyone to wait for another to finish eating. Farmer Brown's Boy had been thoughtful enough to make several of those little food stations.

So Chatterer had a shelf all to himself and not even Sammy Jay called him a thief as he stuffed himself greedily, nor did his cousin, Happy Jack, once seek to pick a quarrel with him. Farmer Brown's Boy had even brought boards from the barn and placed them so that Happy Jack and Chatterer could run up them to the food shelves. He had guessed how hard it was for them to climb those icy tree trunks.

For a while Chatterer was too busy to pay any attention to anyone else. At last he had eaten all he could hold and by this time he was quite himself again. He was as saucy and pert as ever. His eyes had recovered their brightness. His tongue began to go for Chatterer dearly loves the sound of his own voice. He jerked his tail as if somehow that helped him express his feelings. He tried to pick a quarrel with Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, but couldn't. He scolded Sammy Jay. He dared anybody to come to his shelf.

But no one paid him the least attention. You see, they knew that he didn't mean a word he said. They knew it was just his way of showing off. And nobody minded it in the least.

RENO Where Shattered Romances Are "Reno-vated."

The Great American Divorce Resort and Its Colony Described by Lilyan Stratton, Who Took the Cure—Your Waiter, Your Stenographer, Your Maid, You May Find Are All There on the Same Errand as Yourself.

By MARGUERITE MOORE MAIL-SHALL.

RENO, haven of the unhappily mated; Reno, city of a thousand jokes and of nobody knows how many tragedies; Reno, the quick-lunchroom of the divorce-hungry; Reno, as it works, plays, dances, laughs and, above all, functions in the most famous of its industries—this is the picture flashed upon the screen in a newly published book which the author, Lilyan Stratton, has called, simply, "Reno." And it is bound to gratify a certain human curiosity on the part of many men and women who never have been and never will be "on the road to Reno."

The attractive author is now Mrs. Lilyan Stratton Corbin of Mountain Lakes, N. J., and she plausibly dedicates her book "To all good husbands, and to my own in particular." She owns, however, to the most essential qualifications for writing a guidebook to Reno—she's been there. "I have lived in Reno," she says, "I have felt the pulse of its secret soul." In short, she herself obtained a Reno decree, before her present marriage, and with the pen of personal observation depicts Reno scenes, "all of which she saw and part of which she was."

Outsiders have long thought of Reno as a sort of sanitarium for conjugal casualties, and this viewpoint is accepted by many of the town's own citizens, according to the author of "Reno."

"No one will abide there long," she writes, "before being asked 'Are you here for the cure?' At first you may look astonished and say, 'No, I am perfectly well, thank you,' but the smile that lightens the questioner's face makes the meaning slowly dawn. One can hear a porter say to a conductor of the train from the East, 'Any victims today?' And the hotels frequented by the divorcees are known as 'hospitals for first aid to the matrimonially injured.'"

Wherever you "view the landscape" at Reno your eye is almost sure to light on some "injured" wife or husband who has gone to Nevada to be "Reno-vated." According to Lilyan Stratton, the town is not merely a divorce resort for the rich and restive. All over it persons are "working their way through Reno," quite as a boy of girl works his or her way through college. As she describes the situation:

"Your chambermaid, bellboy, hotel clerk, taxi driver, dressmaker, saleslady, cook and laundress, hair-dresser, waiter and bootblack may all and each be a so-called divorcee. (For convenience, I speak of them as 'divorcees,' although Webster defines a 'divorcee' as a man or woman who has already obtained a divorce.)"

"The pretty girl at the newsstand today suddenly disappeared! Yes, she got her divorce. The hotel stenographer has also taken her departure, and now we see a dainty blonde in place of the statuesque brunette. The brunette has got her divorce and has gone to San Francisco to marry a millionaire sportsman."

"The waiter comes; there is something unusual about him also; one can't help noticing his big, powerful form as he bends over the table to take the order; he is a New York chauffeur working his way free from a nagging wife so that he may marry a popular society belle. You can forgive her for admiring his handsome physique; a Greek god he is in spite of his Irish brogue and had ear for grammar. But then she probably does not hear much of that and won't if he is wise."

In the hotel cabaret the beautiful girl soloist and the remarkable male violinist are alike "there for the cure." "What is more," Miss Stratton points out, "a great many of these people who are working are well fixed financially, and are just working to keep sane. Busy people seldom get lonely; lonely people often are too much in quest of companionship. Moral: don't play with fire; and if you do get into trouble don't blame it on the 'altitude.' Reno's altitude has been somewhat abused by colonists in the past; loneliness is much more to blame for the unhappy state of mind so often experienced out there, and loneliness is mostly the result of idleness."

"I remember tipping my waitress one evening. The next day I received a bunch of American beauties from that lady, which simply bowled me over at a glance. She got her divorce, and is now married to a wealthy New York real estate man."

"I received shock after shock until I felt like a shock absorber. I was dining with a friend one evening in a restaurant we often patronized. The gentleman with me desired a cigarette and found his case was empty. A waitress, noticing his disappointment, extracted a silver cigarette case, opened it, and offered my friend one of her monogrammed cigarettes. Another victim!"

Yet there is not just one divorce after another, according to "Reno," which, by the way, is published by the Colyer Printing Co., Newark. The Uplift has hit the town. It has a Carnegie Public Library. The University of Nevada is located within Reno's boundaries. "Of special interest to women," Miss Stratton points out, "would be the Century Club, a well-organized body of the best women in the city. They are interested in home economics, child welfare and improvement of social conditions generally."

"There is also a Suffragette Club which is known as the Civic League, and is also instrumental in promoting public welfare."

It's bad all these highly moral influences had no effect on the conduct of the lady whose story is told as an example of Reno's practical jokes.

Mrs. Jones, a very beautiful and statuesque blonde, went out to Reno for a divorce. On her arrival there she wrote her husband that she had repented. "I am sorry I ran away from you," she is said to have written, "and if you will come out here for me we will make up and live happily ever after."

He came out and was arrested and thrown in jail, charged with extreme cruelty. The lady got her divorce within three weeks instead of six months, as she was able to serve the summons upon her husband in the State of Nevada.

Here, finally, is a vivid picture of "the passing show" of Reno, to be observed in Reno's Courthouse, where, as the author of "Reno" observes, if one is "doing time" one's self, one can obtain inside information, "though it is a bit like being at one's own hanging."

"Each day the divorce mill grinds the steady grist; the wife who is nagged and abused; the one who is obliged to support herself and her children; the one who has outgrown her charms; the luxurious beauty who has spent her husband's fortune and is preparing to spend another in the same way; the wife who has made a mistake and found the right man at the wrong time; the wife whose husband another woman has taken; the wife of a drunkard or a gambler."

"The husband who is nagged; the husband whose wife is a spendthrift; the husband whose wife wins prizes at bridge and neglects her home; the husband whose wife has deserted him when he needed her most."

This is Lilyan Stratton's final conclusion about the problem of Reno: "The divorce court should only be appealed to as a last resort, to free some tortured soul from a life of misery, caused by humiliation, shame and hatred, the very essence of all evil. When the sacred state of matrimony becomes so profaned and degraded that it soils everything it comes in contact with; when even the minds of our children are poisoned and distorted by the atmosphere, and the last ray of hope has vanished, only then the hour has struck to ask the law for justice."

ROAST DUCK

CHOOSE a duck having a full breast, a plump belly and thick, yellow feet. Clean it, remove the pin feathers, cut out the neck and make a French breast, and cut the pinions at the first joint. Remove the oil bag at the base of the tail, stuff and truss the same as chicken. A well-seasoned onion and sage stuffing is the favorite. Rub over with lemon juice to whiten the flesh. Cook in a double roasting pan, or covered pan, basting often for a full half-hour, then uncover to brown. Just before the duck is done dredge lightly with a little flour to plump it. Make a good brown dish gravy to serve with duck, also make a gooseberry sauce, and serve baked potatoes and peas with it.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH FRIDAY, JANUARY 20, 1922.

Fashion News Notes

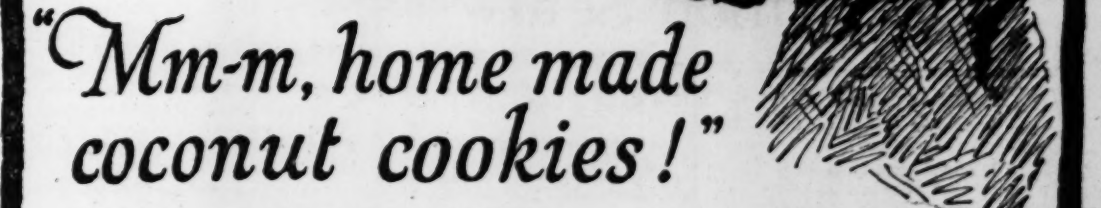

PARIS.—Changes in fashions for spring will be in detail rather than in design, according to the French couturier. The silhouette, the fashionable designers declare, will remain almost unchanged, but color, in many instances of the most vivid shades, is scheduled to replace the more somber tones. The long waist line is expected to continue, although with strict avoidance of exaggeration. Perhaps the most distinctive change forecast is in the sleeve. This does not mean that the vogue of the big sleeve is ended but great emphasis is being placed on the Henry VIII sleeve, which is wide only at the top and which molds the arm closely from elbow to wrist.

NEW YORK.—Some wrap designers have been reading old editions of "Robinson Crusoe," according to the appearance of some of the latest winter capes worn by screen stars here. These garments are designed along the shaggy lines in which the old illustrators pictured Crusoe's homemade garments, but instead of being of goat skins, they are constructed of cleverly contrasting effects in black and white monkey fur. The black fur is used for the main body of the cape wrap, while the white fur fringes the irregular hem-line.

NEW YORK.—Neither thick ankles nor thick hosiery will be in fashion for anything except athletic sports next spring. Sheer hose for both street and dress wear appear certain of approval. Some doubt is expressed as to the ability of manufacturers to meet the demand for chiffon stockings and an even silk mesh net may be substituted. An unusual battle is expected among the colors with taupe, beige, sand, nude and gray threatening the supremacy of black, even for wear with black shoes. White stockings are expected to be extensively worn because of the forecast for popularity of the cotton dresses for spring and summer.

From observations made by Dr. Edward F. Bigelow, nature study guide of the Camp Fire Girls of America, it is claimed that girls are braver than boys.

"Seeing is believing" may be an old aphorism, but it has no standing with people who would realize the truth about dirt in their undecorated dark garments.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

(One of a series of short funny stories by the celebrated American humorist which appear daily in the Post-Dispatch on this page.)

WHAT MIGHT BE CALLED AN ACTIVE MAN.

THE wharf at New Orleans was crowded with foot travelers, vehicles and freight piles. A brawny Irishman, driving a truck, locked wheels with another truck operated by a negro. As the two trucks jammed, the negro opened his mouth in profane and highly disrespectful protest. But before he had freed six words of his speech unconsciousness shut off further utterance. For the Irishman, with one flying leap, had reached the earth. His left hand closed on the negro's ankle, and as the latter was jerked violently into space the enemy's right fist landed a wing shot squarely on the point of his jaw, and for the time being he knew no more. Ten minutes later the victim half opened his eyes. A policeman was bending over him, applying first aid. "What's the matter with you?" demanded the officer. "A white man hit me," said the darky, "an' I wants him arrested." "What's his name?" "I don't know what his name is, boss—never seed him befo' in my life." "Well, then, what does he look like?" "I don't rightly know dat, neither. Hit all happen' so quick-lak I didn't get a good look at 'im." "Then how do you expect me to find him if you can't describe him?" asked the puzzled policeman. "Boss, dat ain't goin' be no trouble," stated the negro. "You jest go look for the doin'est man they is in New Orleans!" (Copyright, 1922.)

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague

THE LAST STRAW.

I've never visited the Pole—
I don't go anywhere—
And yet it's comforted my soul
To know that it was there,
The changeless axis of a world
Whose equatorial girth
Through space is violently whirled—
The one fixed thing on earth.

Though friendship fades, though Love grows cold,
Though even you and I
In course of time must needs grow Old,
And, very likely, die;
The Pole, obeying cosmic laws,
Stood there amid the snow
And ice, exactly where it was A billion years ago.

We've often of a hero read
Whose large and lofty soul
Was always, so the author said,
As constant as the Pole.
Which meant that in fair Fortune's Smile,
Or penury's stern pinch,
In calm or storm or luck or trial,
He never budged an inch.

But now—and that's the reason why
I pen this tragic rhyme—
I learn the Pole has gone awry.
It's moving all the time,
Forever to calm and careless north,
All trust has reached its end;
There's nothing left upon the earth
On which we may depend.

Tom was skeptical, but, sure enough, at the time predicted the sky darkened and the chickens retired to roost. The negro, amazed beyond measure, sought out the scientist. "Professor," he asked, "how long ago did you know dem chickens would go to roost?" "About a year ago," he replied with a smile.
